Neumann's back

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The public hearing regarding Neumann Homes proposed PUD (planned unit development) calling for 1308 homes on the 634-acre Anest property that was eventually continued from July 27, 2000 to Sept. 21, 2000, and then tabled, will be heard on June 25 at the Antioch Community High School (ACHS) in the commons at 6:30 p.m.

At the regular meeting of the board of directors of the Village of Antioch, township resident Marianne Guy addressed the new board members in particular and said, "Don't roll over and play dead for Neumann Homes."

Residents, already angered at the crowded Village Hall, inability to hear and limited time to speak at the July 27 hearing, were further miffed when the Sept. 21 meeting ended not long after it started. At the time, one factor contributing to the postponement was the issue of sewer and water based on the complaint filed by the limited liability company Deercree, and Otto Sprenger against Kenneth Glick, Lake County and the Village of Antioch on Sept. 6, 2000.

Remembering this, resident John Horan asked, "How can this meeting be continued when the sewer easement question hasn't been settled?"

No one on the board directly answered the question, but village attorney Donald Anderson indicated that this was just the resumption of a continued hearing, that the hearing needs to be completed with the either the board approving or disapproving the proposed PUD.

He added that this is being done now because Neumann Homes hopes to begin construction this summer if the proposal is approved.

Mayor Taso Maraveas said, "We are in negotiations with Neumann Homes, and we are doing this as part of those negotiations."

Guy encouraged the board to consider attorney Newton Finn's opinion that she had sent to the mayor in hopes new board members would also have the opportunity to read it. ACRE (Antioch Coalition to

'Don't roll over and play dead for Neumann Homes'

Marianne Guy
township resident

Rescue the Environment) retained Finn to possibly sue the Village of Antioch if the Neumann Homes development is approved.

Finn contends that the Village of Antioch as a municipality acted outside its limits in settling with the Anests in 1992, and would therefore be protected if Neumann Homes were to sue the village.

According to Finn, the Illinois "black letter" law, or a well settled legal principle that is beyond dispute, is that anyone entering into an agreement with a municipality is presumed to know the powers of that municipality. In a previous conversation, Finn said, "What the village did in negotiating with Anest was set up a PUD, which is a tailor-made plan for future development. There are many steps that must be followed under Antioch ordinance to do this. Antioch has exceeded its lawful powers in not following its own ordinance."

In spite of Finn's opinion, Maraveas said that the Village of Antioch doesn't have the financial resources to be involved in a legal battle with Neumann Homes. Having noted that Guy lived outside the village limits, Maraveas said, "I am responsible to all 8,768 residents of the village."

Ken Neumann and Neumann Homes filed a lawsuit against the Village of Antioch of Jan. 29. In short, the suit contends that the village has not abided by provisions of the settlement agreement it entered into on Oct. 7, 1992 with Bill and Peter Anest to dismiss the disconnection case (to de-annex the property from the village). According to the lawsuit under paragraph 8 the provision states that the village "shall have ninety days for action on a proposed Preliminary Plan of a Planned Development..."

Additionally, the lawsuit says, "The Settlement Agreement provides that approval of a development plan shall not be unreasonably withheld and it will be consistent with actions taken relative to other developments in the Village and the Village's review of the proposed planned development shall not be 'used to reduce gross residential density or the total number of dwelling units' that are approved elsewhere in the Settlement Agreement."

The lawsuit states that Neumann offered to sell at cost about 200 acres of the Anest property to the Forest Preserve Dist. in exchange for an easement over the Glick property and support for Neumann's development.

Trustee draws battle lines

Trustees and mayor at odds with one another over appointments, hiring, salaries

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Attending a meeting of the board of directors of the Village of Antioch these days reminds one of the old joke, "I went to a boxing match and a hockey game broke out." Though there have been neither hockey games nor actual fistfights, battle lines are being drawn over appointments, hiring practices and salaries given to new employees since Mayor Taso Maraveas took office.

Trustee Dorothy Larson confronted Maraveas when a letter was read thanking Ted Axton for his years of service as chairman of the Antioch Police and Fire Commission. She said, "I don't have a problem with that letter, it was lovely. What I have a problem with is that I called Ted Axton when I saw this on the agenda (referring to the item under 'Mayor' to appoint someone in Axton's place) and no one else told Ted Axton he was not being re-appointed after 12 years, since the board kept. I had to break the news to him."

Later in the meeting when Maraveas asked for a motion to appoint Bruce Ahlquist as chairman to the Police and Fire Commission, Larson spoke up again and said, "This board doesn't have the authority to appoint a chairman to this commission. They have to do that themselves."

She then passed out copied pages to the mayor and other trustees supporting her contention and said, "They are governed by state statutes and not the village."

Village attorney Donald Anderson glanced over the material and said, "It looks like Larson is correct, but this isn't conclusive."

An amended motion was made appointing Ahlquist as a commissioner in the event he cannot be appointed as chairman. The motion was approved with one absent and with Larson declining to vote.

Though there was no written report to be submitted by the finance committee, Larson said, "I would like to discuss some finance issues." She brought up that though parks and recreation director Laurie Stahl was given a raise, she is still paid less than some assistants and other office help. "It's not enough of a raise," said Larson. "She's the head of a department."

Assistant to the village administrator Mike Haley said, "We reviewed and gave salary adjustments to six employees. She received a $2.75 increase. We felt this was a significant raise."

Bible school offers 'Veggie Tales' values

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Larry the cucumber, Laura the carrot and Madam Blueberry will be at the Jewel on June 9 pre-registering kindergartners through fifth-graders for the Christian Life Fellowship Veggie Town Vacation Bible School to be held weekdays from 9 a.m.-noon June 18-22.

"Veggie Tales' are so popular with the kids these days," said Eva Voling, one of the main planners of this year's Bible school theme. "Each day we'll be teaching a value and helping these children become better citizens."

Members of the congregation made costumes, decorations and puppets so that everything throughout the week will carry the "Veggie Tales" theme.

Voling said Aunt Ruth will carry the program. "Each morning she will teach the children a song that she wrote that puts the scripture to music," she explained. "There will be a tree on the stage with her with the branches as the values the children will learn."

Each day the participants will visit a scene crafted like a restaurant, a beach, home, church and a retirement home. "The children will learn a value that corresponds with where they are," Voling said. "Compassion will be the value they learn at the retirement home, for example."

Children will be separated into groups according to age. Each morning will be comprised of a lesson, crafts, outdoor games and play and a snack with each group rotating through the four sections.

This is great training for the children'

Eva Voling
Bible school planner

Before leaving for the day, children will watch a "Veggie Tale" video that highlights the value for the day, and a video of a different area of the world narrated by children. Those wishing to make an offering may do so at the "bank" and will be given a receipt of the offering.

Each day the five best-behaved children will receive a prize rewarding their behavior. At the end of the week one special grand prize will be awarded.

"This is great training for the children," said Voling. "We really hope to get as many pre-registered as possible to help us with our preparations."

Pre-registration can be done by calling 395-8572, or by going to the church's web site at www.anti-ochcif.org.

Carr places at beauty pageant

Local teen wins five trophies at Sunburst International Beauty Pageant

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Chelsea Carr, a thirteen-year-old Lindenhurst resident and Antioch Upper Grade School student, took five trophies at the Sunburst International Beauty Pageant Illinois state finals. Out of 26 girls in her age division, she won second runner up in beauty, first runner up in swimwear, third runner up in casual wear and won the award for best personality.

Carr is no novice to beauty pageants having won the Northern Illinois Pageant in October 2000 and competed as Junior Miss for Lindenhurst last year as well.

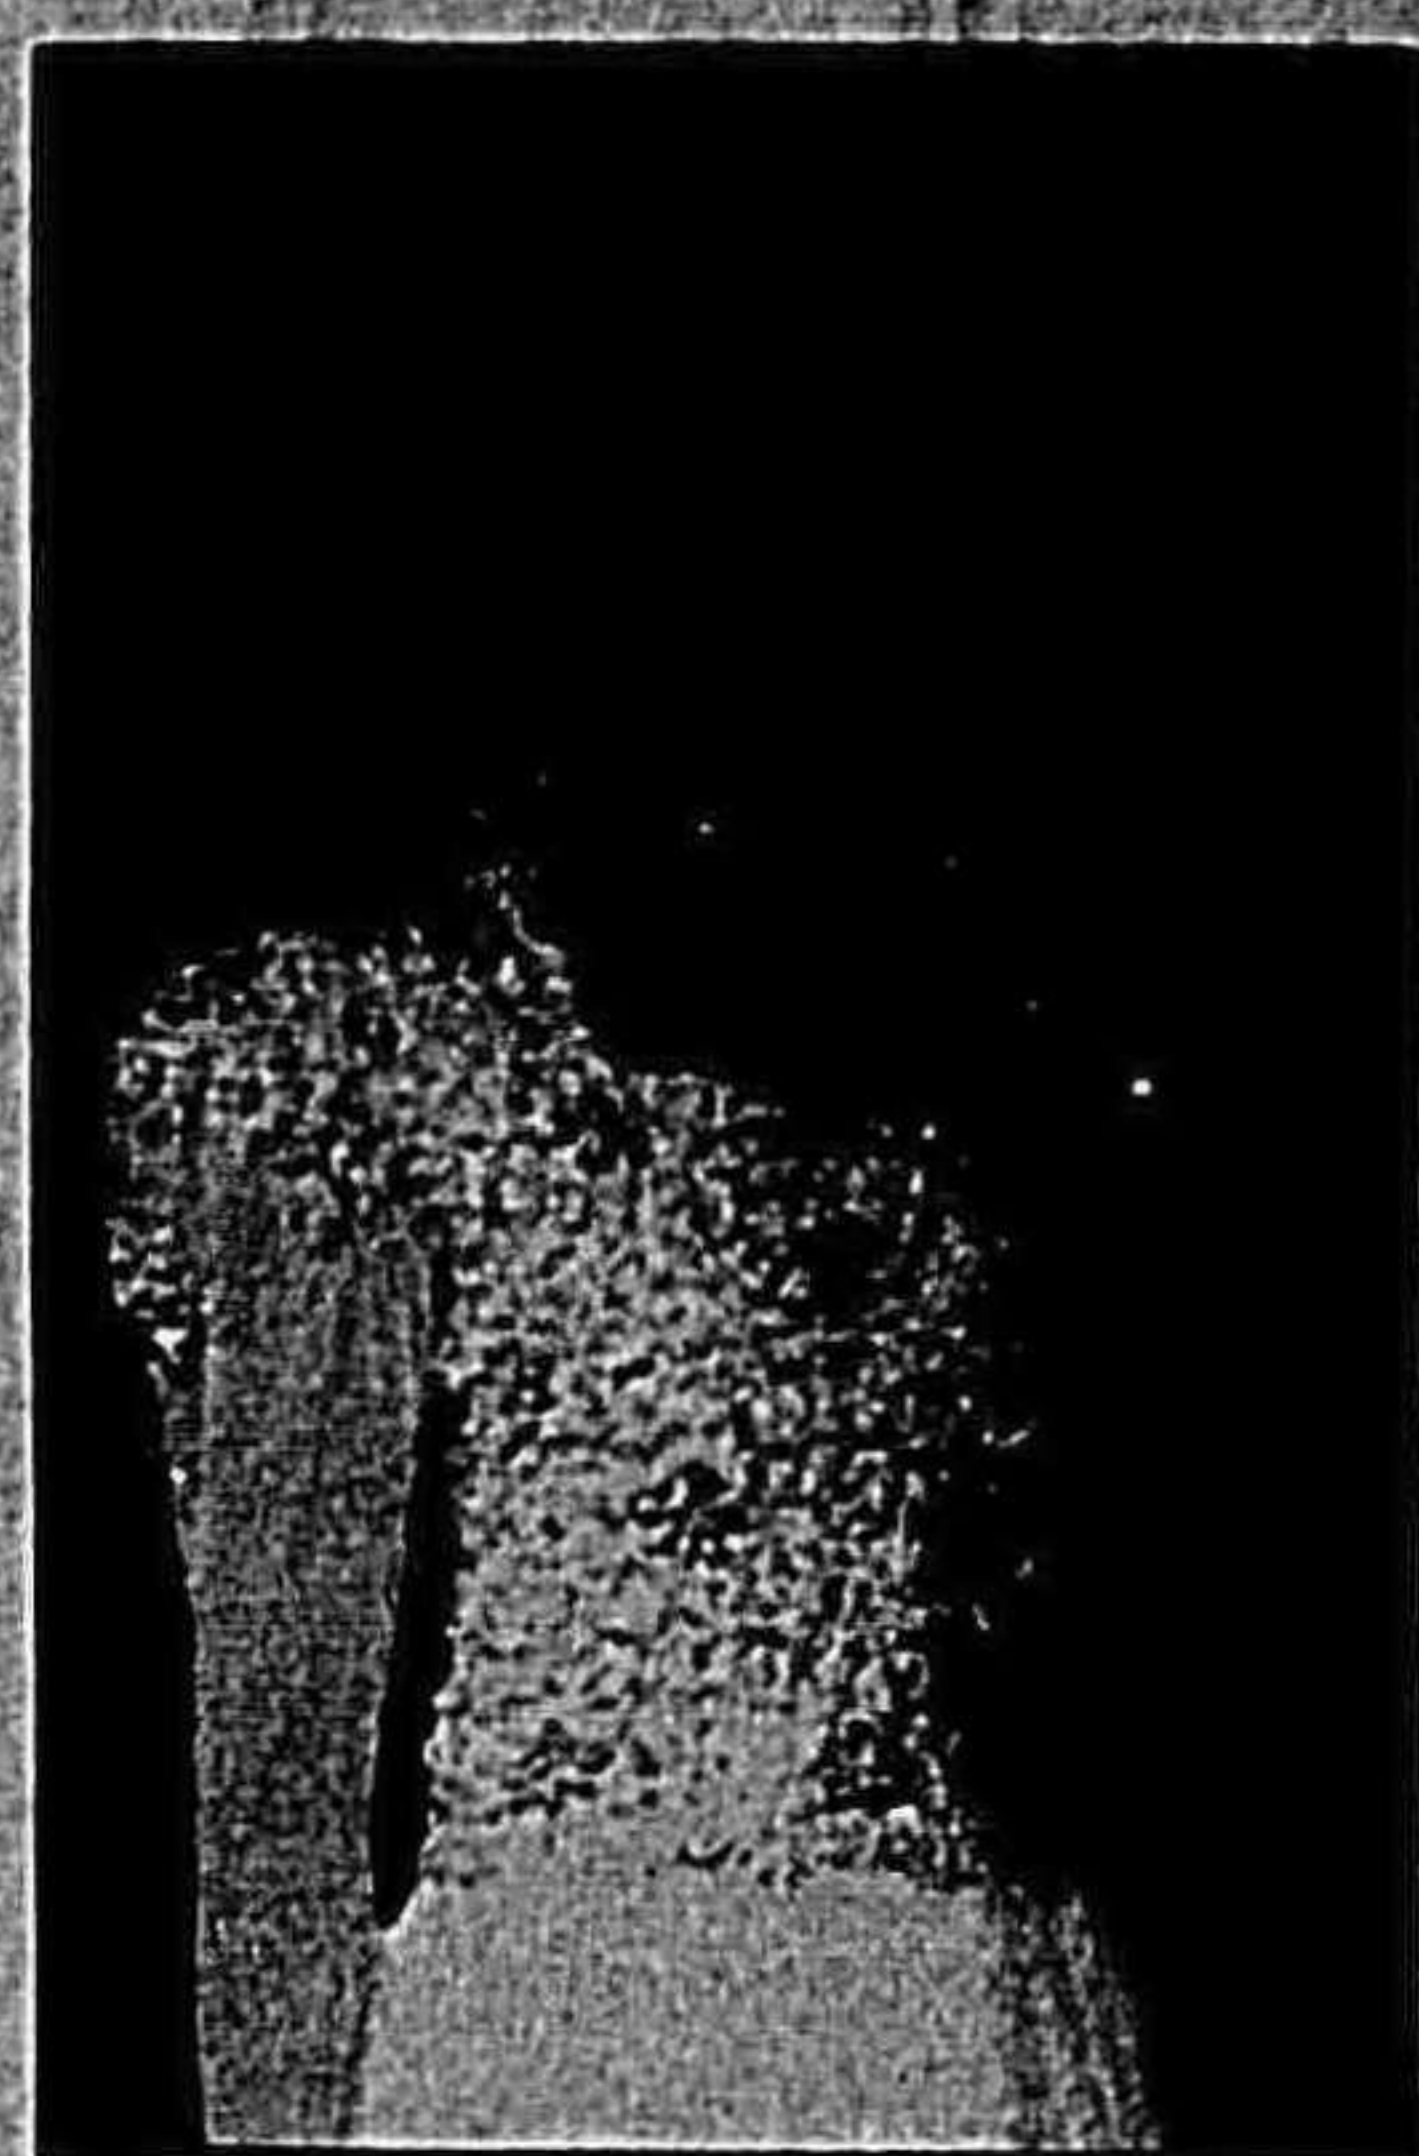

She said she found out about Sunburst through a friend. "My friend told me about the competition," said Carr. "I won the preliminary and that made me eligible for the state competition."

This summer, Carr plans to fulfill the community service commitments that came with winning the Northern Illinois Pageant and travel to compete in two more pageants in Illinois: Glamour Girls and Lavender and Lace.

"I will be participating in parades in McHenry for Fiesta Days, a Vernon Hills parade, a Wadsworth parade and the Lindenhurst Fourth of July parade," she said. "I will also be at the duck races in Barrington. I've never done that before - all I know is that it's held at the pool."

Carr added, "I will also be attending other pageants (to watch) like the ones in Antioch and Lake Villa."

Carr said she would wait until she's 16 years old before she competes in the Lindenhurst pageant again, then as part of the Miss competition.

Chelsea Carr, 13, of Lindenhurst and incoming eighth-grader at Antioch Upper Grade School, shows off the dress she wore in the beauty portion of the Sunburst International Beauty Pageant Illinois state finals.

Fair draws artisans nation wide

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

"It's the largest one we've had in the 10 years I've been involved," said Barbara Porch, director of the Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry, of this year's Antioch Arts and Crafts Fair. "It's not a just a local crafts fair. We have artisans and crafters from around the country."

The Antioch Arts and Crafts Fair will be held on June 16-17 from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. on Saturday and from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on Sunday on Toft St.

According to Porch, the 120 booths will be filled with wares from those traveling in from Florida, Texas, Arizona, Michigan, Ohio and Missouri as well as from Illinois and Wisconsin. "It's not quite an international show yet," she said. "We don't have anyone from Canada, but do have so much interest that we've had to turn some of the artists and crafters away."

Porch explained that the Chamber sponsored event has made such a good reputation for itself that people are coming to the Chamber to ask to be included. "It's great for the consumers because there are so many more and varied items," said Porch. "I'm not crafty myself, so I'm the typical consumer who buys these things, and there is going to be some really neat stuff."

The list of items one can expect to see includes the following: hand woven items, appliques, ceramics, candles, yard décor, copper sculptures, garden furniture, stained glass, goose clothes, baby items, jewelry, scroll work, glass blowing, floral design, chimes, carved animal horns and scrimshaw, pottery, needle point, door mats, hair accessories, bird houses and a variety of wood products like shelving, containers and carvings.

Consumable products will include kettle corn, yogurt smoothies, Italian ice, hot dogs and brats and a variety of sweets. "Something Sweet (one of Antioch's candy stores) will have free samples of its fudge like it's done in the past," said Porch. "Eberle's Farmer's Market from Trevor, Wis. will be at the fair, too."

Parking will be available at the municipal lot off of Toft St., at the grade school about one block away and in the parking lot behind the shops that line the east side of Main St. back by the William E. Brook Memorial Wetland and Sanctuary.

Discover awards Antioch girl

Nearly $1.5 million to be awarded

Discover® Card is awarding nearly $1.5 million in scholarships to high school juniors as part of the Discover Card Tribute Award® Scholarship program. This year marks the 10th anniversary of the Tribute Awards program with an increase in scholarship funding from $1 million to $1.5 million.

Since its inception in 1991, the Discover Card Tribute Award program has awarded more than $8.6 million in scholarships to over 4,000 students nationwide. Given in cooperation with the American Association of School Administrators (AASA), scholarships are awarded to high school juniors who have demonstrated excellence in many areas of their lives—not just academics.

A $2,500 state scholarship local recipient is Amber Rayniak of Antioch of Antioch Community High School.

Once the student graduates high school, scholarship funds may be applied to various education or training programs such as any certification or licensing in a trade, a two year technical degree, an associates' degree or a four year degree at a college or university in any field of study.

The winners in each state go on to compete for nine national scholarships each worth $25,000. The national Tribute Award winners will be honored in June at a ceremony at Discover Financial Services headquarters in Riverwoods.

The Illinois Association of School Administrators coordinated the state panel of judges who based winner selection on information from application materials submitted by each student. The judges represent Illinois's communities as well as the state's education and business sectors.

Remember to follow the pool rules

Cool temperatures have kept the crowds down at the local pool, but when the temperatures warm up don't forget to follow the rules at the Antioch Aquatic Center.

The first and most important rule is to obey the instructions of the lifeguards at all times.

Children under the age of 10 years old must be accompanied by someone 14 years old or older. Running, pushing, throwing, dunking others and playing chicken are prohibited as well as any other activity the guards consider unsafe.

Diving is only allowed in the deep end. Flips are not allowed off of the side of the pool.

Neither smoking nor alcohol is allowed. Food, gum and drinks are not allowed on the pool deck or in the locker room.

Keep all areas clean and use the trash cans provided.

Shower before entering the pool. Hair that is shoulder length and longer should be in a cap or tied back firmly.

No one with open sores or rashes is allowed in the pool.

Diapers are unacceptable and may not be worn. Special swim diapers or plastic pants must be worn under suits.

Additionally, the pool will be closed when the temperature is below 65 degrees or when any situation arises that would jeopardize the public health or safety of those in attendance.

The pool is available to rent from 8-10 p.m. for private parties. The cost, complete with lifeguards is $100 for residents and $150 for non-residents. Call the parks and recreation dept. office at 395-2160 for more information.

The school's out teen splash beach will be held at the Antioch Aquatic Center on June 15 (rain date June 22) from 8-10 p.m. for teens who will be entering sixth through eighth grade.

The water slide and concession stand will be open and lifeguards will be on duty.

Disc jockey Rick Johnson will be playing music for poolside dancing.

The cost is $4 for residents, $6 for non-residents.

If you have interesting information or anecdotes to submit for "Our Town" call staff reporter Julie Murphy at 233-8161, ext. 600 or e-mail jmurphy@lakelandmedia.com

For heaven's sake, clean that refrigerator out!

Everyone out there working in corporate America is familiar with the hidden secrets that lie within the bowels of the office refrigerator. They have all been plagued with leftover containers from various local restaurants and half eaten hard-as-a-rock cheeseburgers. They are brimming with leftover Thanksgiving turkey and Christmas trimmings even though this is June. There sits a bottle of watery ketchup keeping company with the way-beyond-its-prime mustard from last summer's office cook-out. There are several little cardboard boxes with metal handles and Tupperware sandwich containers that have been long forgotten by their rightful owner.

Will somebody please claim the grocery bag on the bottom shelf with the liquefied tomato, moldy cottage cheese and green turkey breast, obviously the remains of a diet gone awry. There is the gallon milk that is so old it has separated into water and curds, along with an opened can of soda, setting precariously on the wire shelving, tottering on the brink of spillage. At last count there were eight yogurt cups with expiration dates from 1987 tucked in behind the even older bottles of salad dressing. Does anybody know what that puddle of liquid forming on the bottom shelf is or where that nasty smell is coming from? And, can anyone recall the last time someone was brave enough to actually open the two bottom drawers?

JINGLE FROM PRINGLE

Lynn Pringle

One has to wonder who in their right mind would subject any lunch they plan to consume within the confines of that cold storage box. Yet every morning new brown paper sacks with peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, Pyrex dishes with last night's spaghetti, and bananas, keep gracing the shelves waiting for the lunch hour to be reclaimed by their maker.

Every once in awhile, some over-zealous, looking-for-a-promotion employee will don rubber gloves, and a clothes pin for their nose, rustle up a very large garbage receptacle and start pitching out anything that no longer resembles something edible. But come tomorrow morning, fresh new mold growing material will fill the shelves once again as "brought a lunch but let's go out anyway" employees fill its shelves with their good intention.

And so goes another "Jingle from Pringle."

Readers with information for "Jingle from Pringle" should call Lynn Pringle at 395-6364.

NEWSPAPERS

June 8-14, 2001

Story by Steve Peterson Staff Reporter • Photos by David Kruger

Lewis and Clark had little on these guys.

On a cold and, at times, rainy Saturday morning, 10 people interested in the art of canoeing, or paddling, completed a (LCFP) Lake County Forest Preserve Dist. course.

"The hard-liners start out early," said volunteer Frank Davis. "It is just a matter of personal preference."

Davis and LCFP staffers Jean Weeg, Eileen Dierker and Jeanette Eichfeld took courses themselves before teaching the group the skill at Van Patten Woods near Wadsworth.

"It is a quiet way to get close to nature," Weeg said. Others just enjoy paddling because they've been doing it for so long.

Canoe lessons attract rookies and veterans alike

"I have been in a canoe since I was 5 years old. I try and help people in the introduction course," Davis, of Lindenhurst, said.

Those who learn from them seem to be enjoying it as well. Although he is not ready to navigate the Des Plaines just yet, one youngster is sure to be rowing for years to come.

"It's a lot of fun. I am looking forward to it," said Zach Sparling, 13, just before it was his turn to take to the water. But just because a 13-year-old is learning so easily, that doesn't necessarily mean paddling is not something that people can just hop on a canoe and do.

"It takes more skill than people think," stated Sparling. "Each stroke you learn progresses from what you learned before." Even those who are a little more experienced agree.

"The course is very informative," Paula Solizimini, of Wauconda, said. "I have been out canoeing a few times. I like going down the Des Plaines River."

At the outset of the four-hour course, participants were told they would be required to learn federal and local safety measures, and how to save yourself from trouble if a dangerous situation is encountered. If all the rules and regulations are followed, canoeing can be a tranquil hobby, full of enjoyable brushes with Mother Nature and wildlife.

"Fun is the most important thing," said Solizimini.

It may seem simple, but paddling can actually include up to seven or eight different strokes to be used in different types of water. Each participant in the course is given a personal flotation device with a whistle and a hat, for safety reasons.

Fun is fun, but safety is a big part of this course. Davis showed the proper CPR technique, and a good deal of time was spent discussing personal flotation devices (PFDs).

"The PFD is the most important device, after the boat and the paddle," Dierker informed the group. Dierker's colleagues concurred.

"There were 4,500 drownings in the United States last year. Most were caused by operator error, not by the boat or the environment," Weeg said. "Males drown more than females."

But where does one go to learn a little more about the sport without taking lessons? One good place to start is in Gurnee, at the Bass Pro Shops Outdoor World.

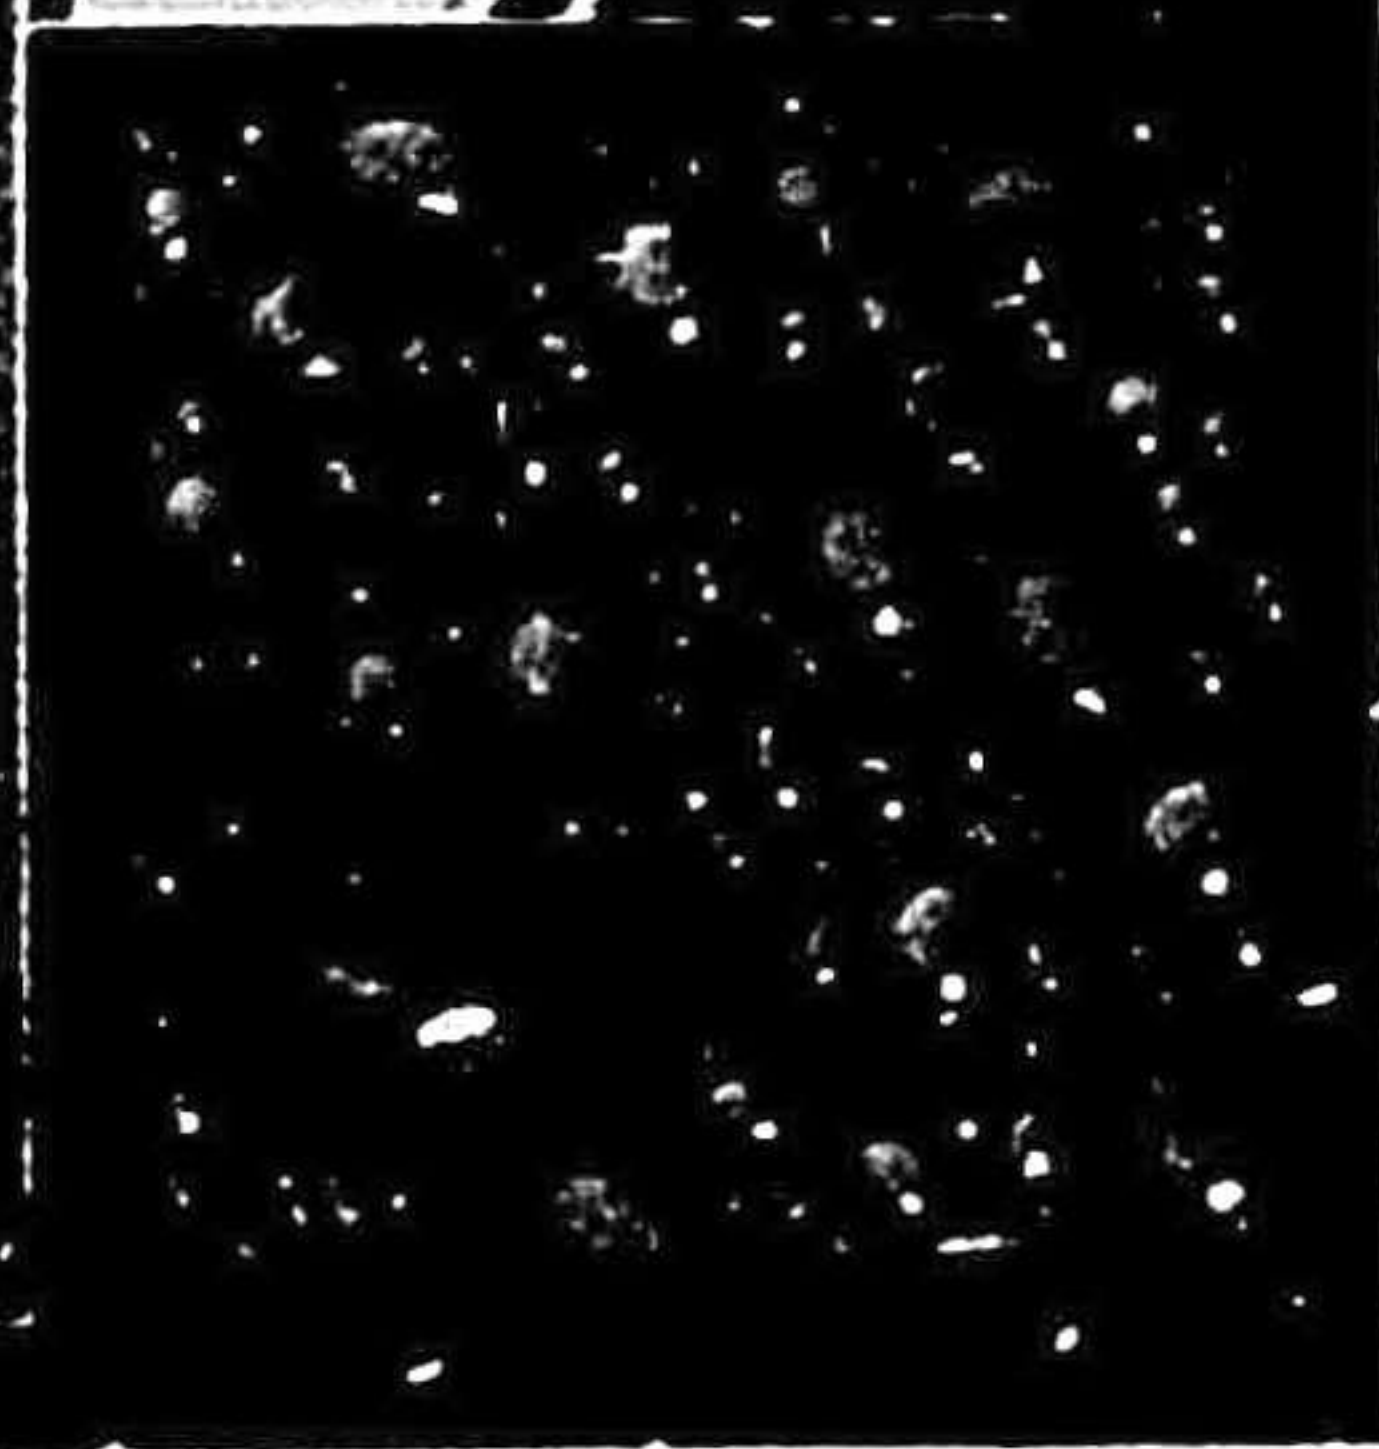

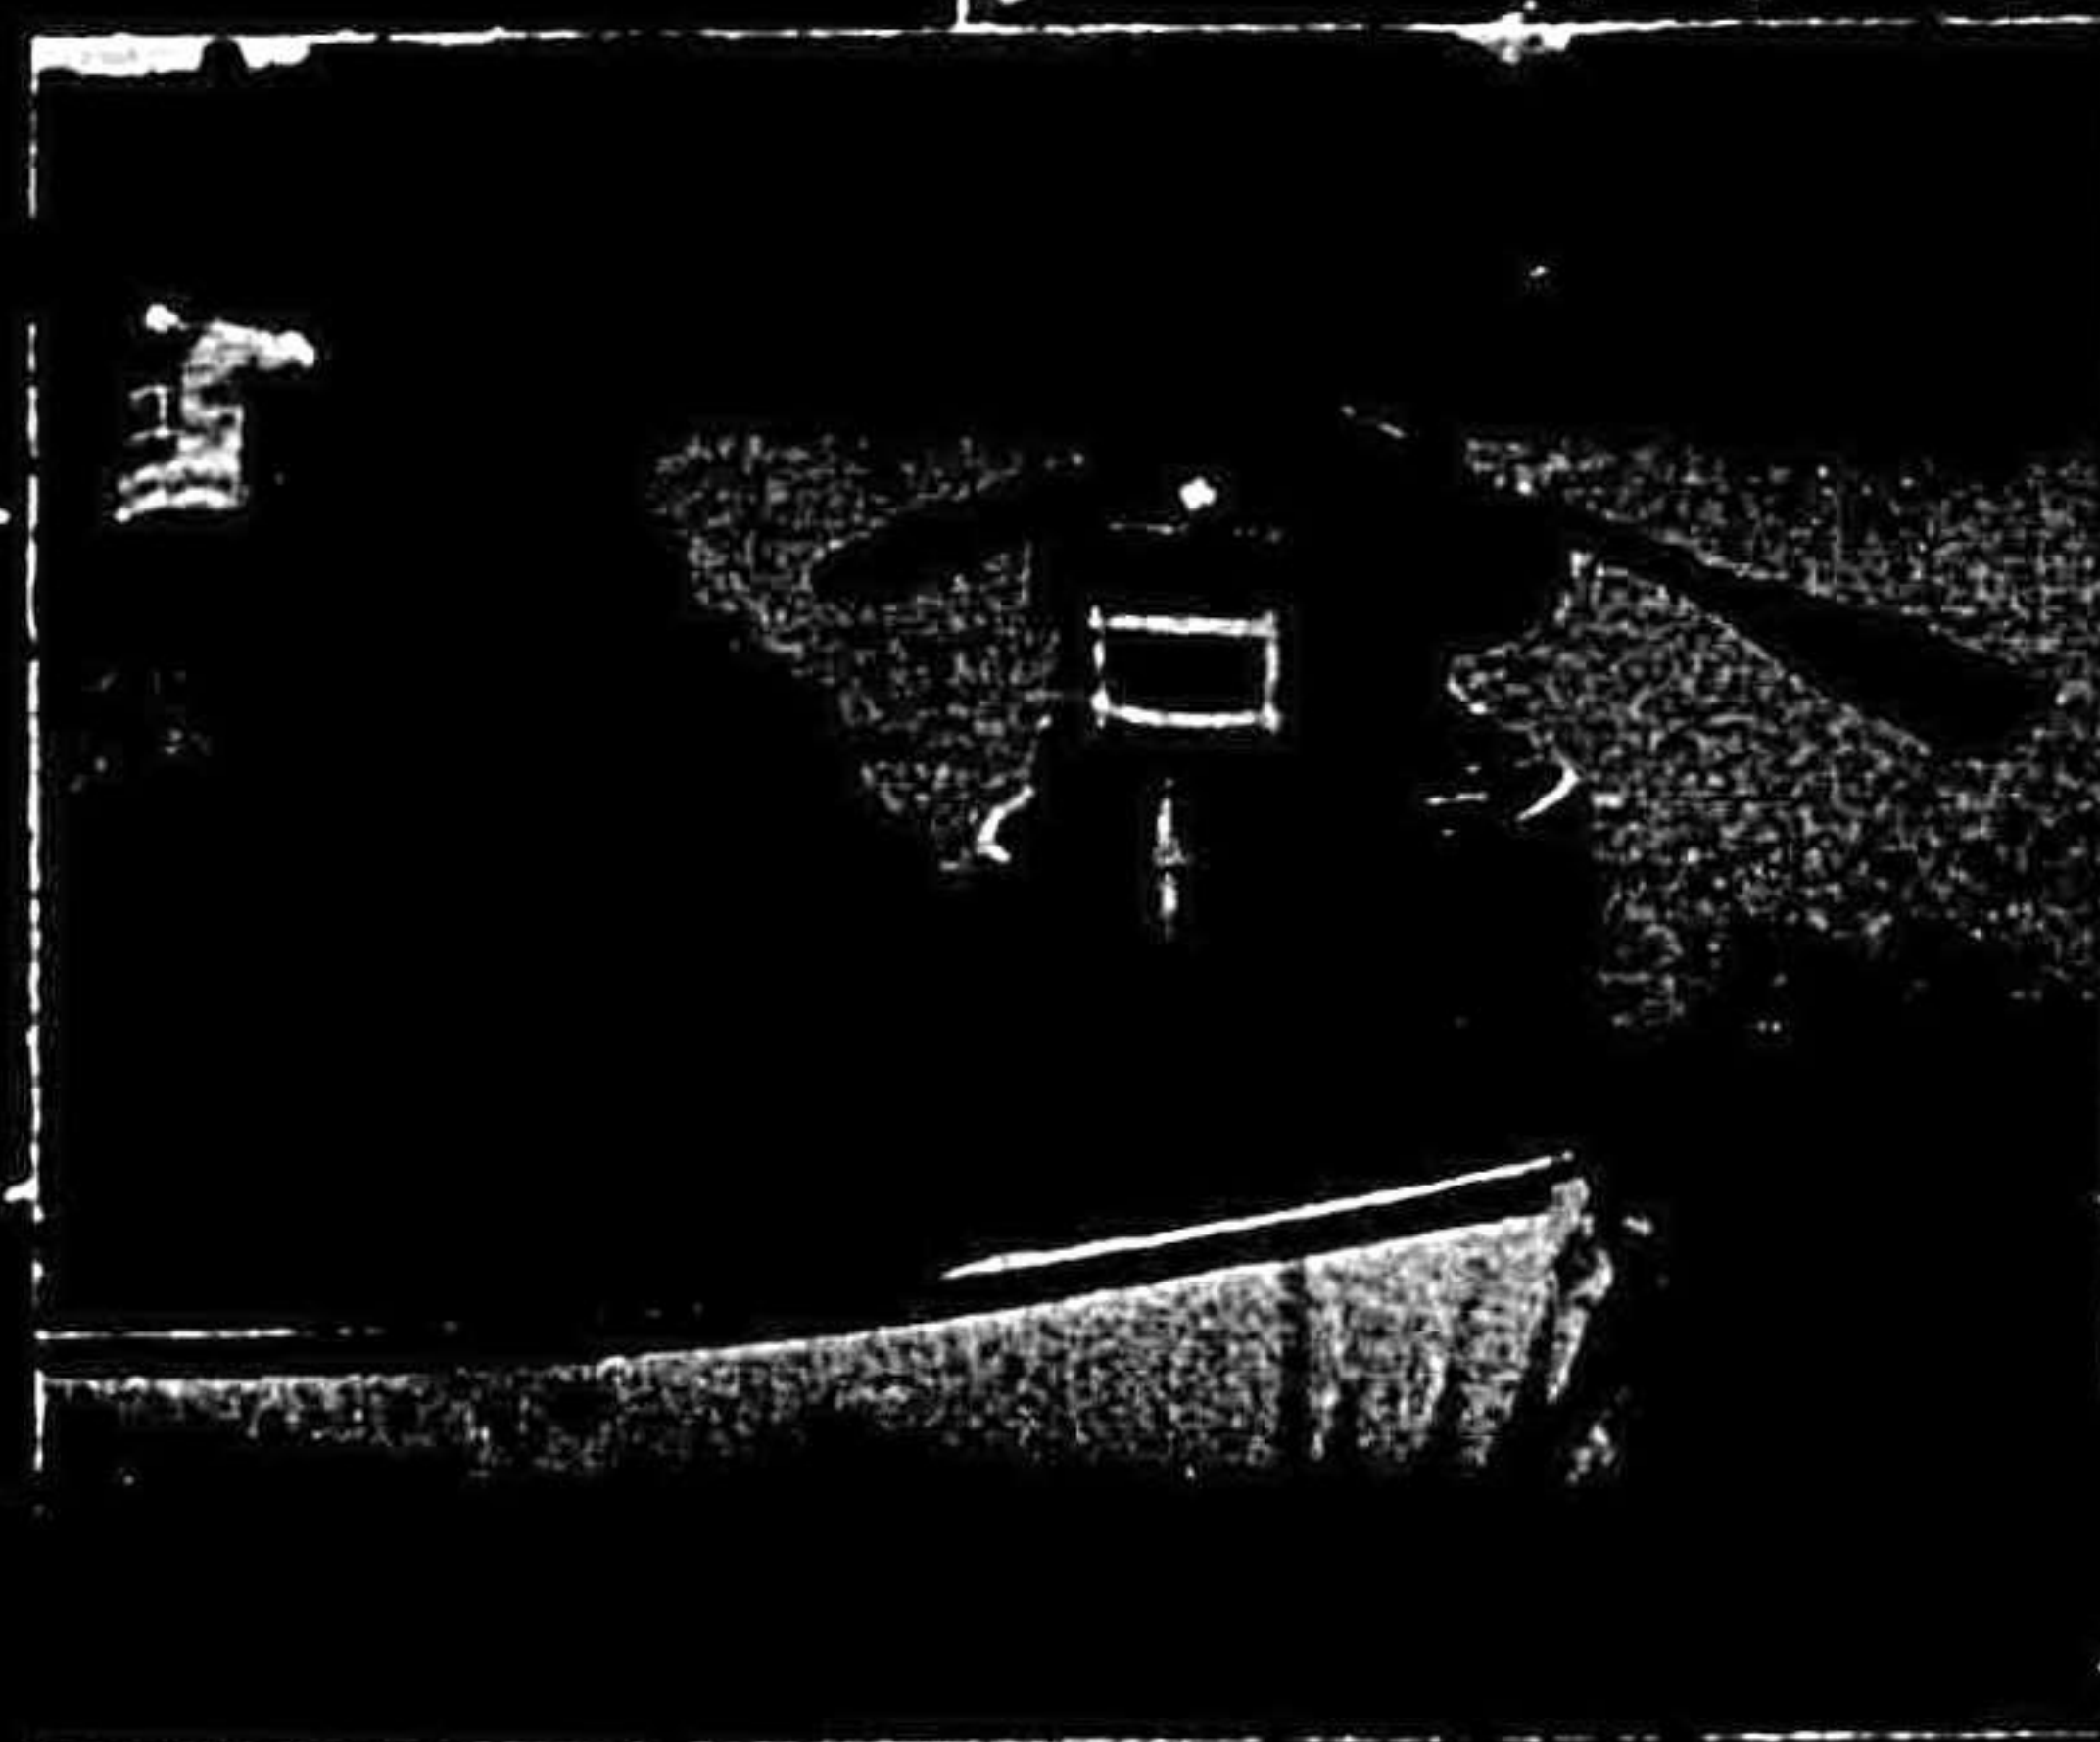

"It is great exercise, being out in the sun or, sometimes, the rain. It is not a lazy sport; you can get sore, depending on how long you are out there," said Lee Girenoth, head of the camping department at Bass Pro Shops Outdoor World. Like Dierker, Girenoth quickly turned the focus of the sport to safety.

"Safety is the responsibility of the paddler. The canoe will only do what you tell it to do," added Dierker. "If you are unsafe, the canoe will act in an unsafe manner."

SPECIAL EVENT

Great Lakes hosts free Summer Concert Series

In the tradition of Lt. Cmdr. John Philip Sousa, Navy Band Great Lakes will host a series of Summer Band Concerts on historic Ross Field at Great Lakes beginning Sunday, June 10.

The public is invited to enjoy the music of the Wind Ensemble that is featured in the first concert of the series, beginning at 6 p.m., Sunday, June 10. Visitors are welcome to bring lawn chairs and blankets to the free concert.

Created in 1917 by Lt. Cmdr. Sousa, Navy Band Great Lakes has performed for thousands of audiences throughout the Midwest. Since first organized at Naval Training Center Great Lakes, the band has represented the pride and professionalism that has become synonymous with the United States Navy. During Sousa's years as band director, the band would stage spectacular shows on Ross Field, with as many as 1,500 Navy musicians. The concerts would draw thousands of visitors to the base from the Chicago and Milwaukee areas.

Navy Band Great Lakes is in its 84th year of continuous naval service and is currently under the direction of Lt. Kevin Bissel.

Comprised of 45 professional Navy musicians, the band operates in an 11-state area stretching from Michigan to North Dakota. A top-notch military ceremonial unit, the band performs concert band literature, music from Broadway, film soundtracks and traditional marches in the style of its founder, John Philip Sousa.

The second concert in the series will be a patriotic prelude to the laser light and fireworks show celebrating Naval Training Center, Great Lakes' 90th Birthday, Sunday, July 1 beginning at 8:30 p.m. That concert is part of a three-day open house event celebrating the base's 90th anniversary. The event also includes the Taste of Lake County, carnival rides and displays of Navy heritage.

Roquefort and Onion Quiche

(Serves 8 as an appetizer, 4 as a main course)

2 Tbl. unsalted butter	2 large egg yolks
3 large onions, thinly sliced	1/2 cup heavy cream
1 tsp. finely chopped fresh thyme	1/4 cup whole milk
1/2 cup crumbled Roquefort cheese	1/2 tsp. sea salt
1 (9-inch) flaky butter crust, baked & cooled	1/8 tsp. freshly ground black pepper
1 large egg	Pinch of freshly grated nutmeg

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. Melt the butter in a heavy sauté pan over medium heat. Add the onions and cover the pan. Decrease the heat to low and cook, stirring occasionally, for 15 to 20 minutes, until the onions are very soft, but not brown. Remove the lid and increase the heat to medium-high. Cook, stirring frequently, for about 5 minutes, to evaporate any excess liquid. Add the Roquefort and stir over low heat just until the cheese has melted and the mixture is smooth. Spread the onion and cheese mixture evenly into the cooled crust.

In a bowl, combine the egg, egg yolks, cream, milk, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Whisk just until thoroughly combined. Pour the custard filling over the onion mixture and place on a rimmed baking sheet (to catch any spillovers).

Bake for 30 minutes, until the filling is set and the top is puffed and browned. Serve hot or at room temperature, cut into wedges.

Former Antioch resident writes book on Catalina pottery

Santa Catalina Island, the famed isle of romance situated 23 miles off the coast of California southwest of Long Beach, is celebrated as a tourist destination, famed as a setting for many motion pictures and remembered by sports fans as the one-time winter home of the Chicago Cubs.

Now a native of Lake County has authored a book covering the island's artistic side, the manufacture of distinctive clay products for a 10-year period ending in 1937, that today forms an enthusiastic following of collectors and archivists.

Jeannine L. Pedersen, 27, who grew up in Antioch, serves as curator of collections at the Catalina Island Museum. In this capacity, she co-authored "The Art of Catalina Clay Products" with Stacey A. Otte, director of the museum housed in the famed Catalina Island Casino Building.

Otte praised Pedersen for heading up a project to chronicle the history of Catalina pottery and a condensed catalog of clayware collections.

Joining the Catalina Island Museum as a collections assistant in 1998, Pedersen also is the co-creator and manager of the Annual Catalina Pottery and Tile Extravaganza, Avalon, Calif.

Before joining the Catalina Museum staff, Pedersen served as a decorative arts specialist for the Lake County Public Administrator and Guardian. Her background also includes an internship at the Tempe, Ariz., Historical Museum, and serving as an archivist and collections manager for Consolidated Communications, Inc., Matteson, Ill.

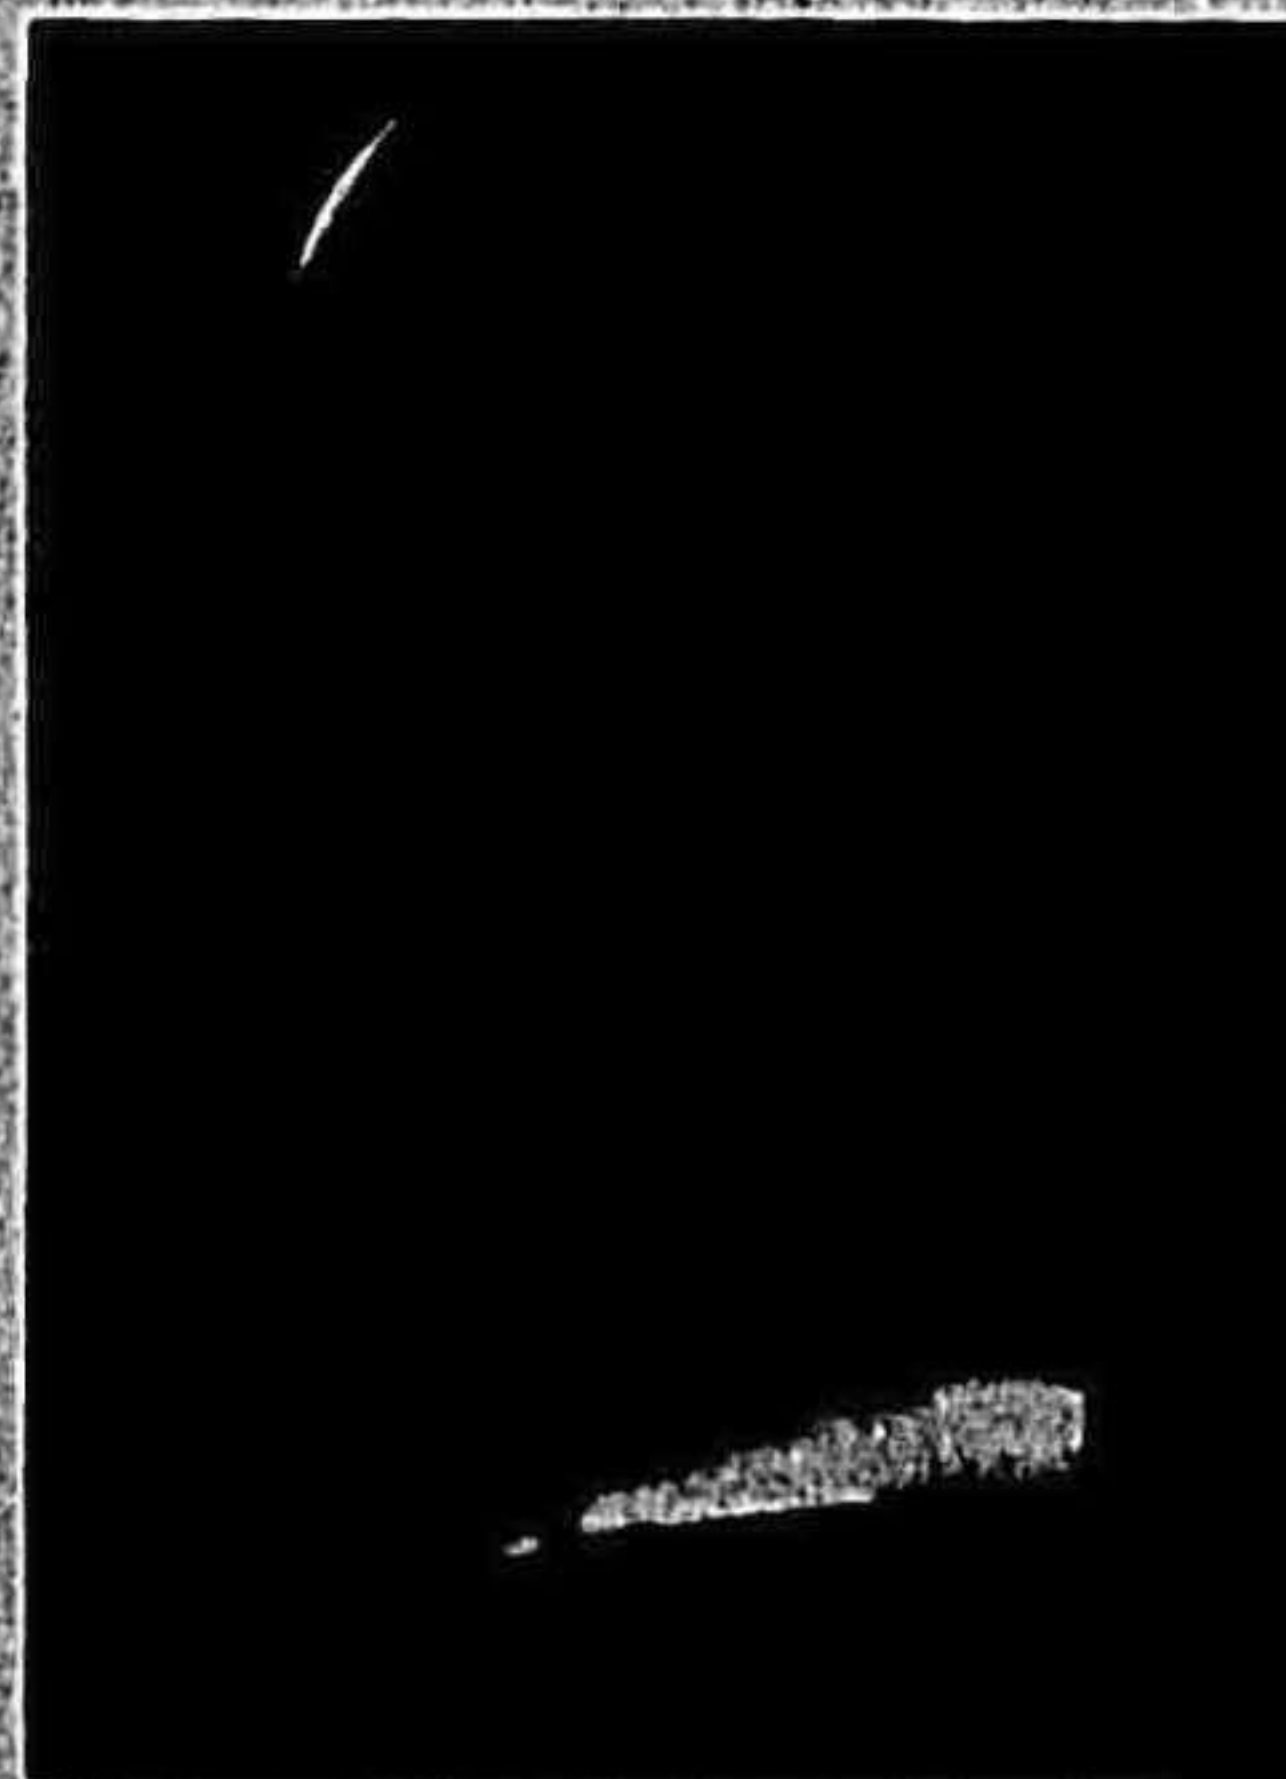

She has a bachelor's degree from Marquette University, majoring in anthropology and history, and a masters degree from Eastern Illinois University in historical administration and museum science.

Otte said Pedersen's literary efforts provide material for a growing interest in the products made from island clay known as Catalina ware, Catalina tiles, Catalina Tite and Catalina Pottery.

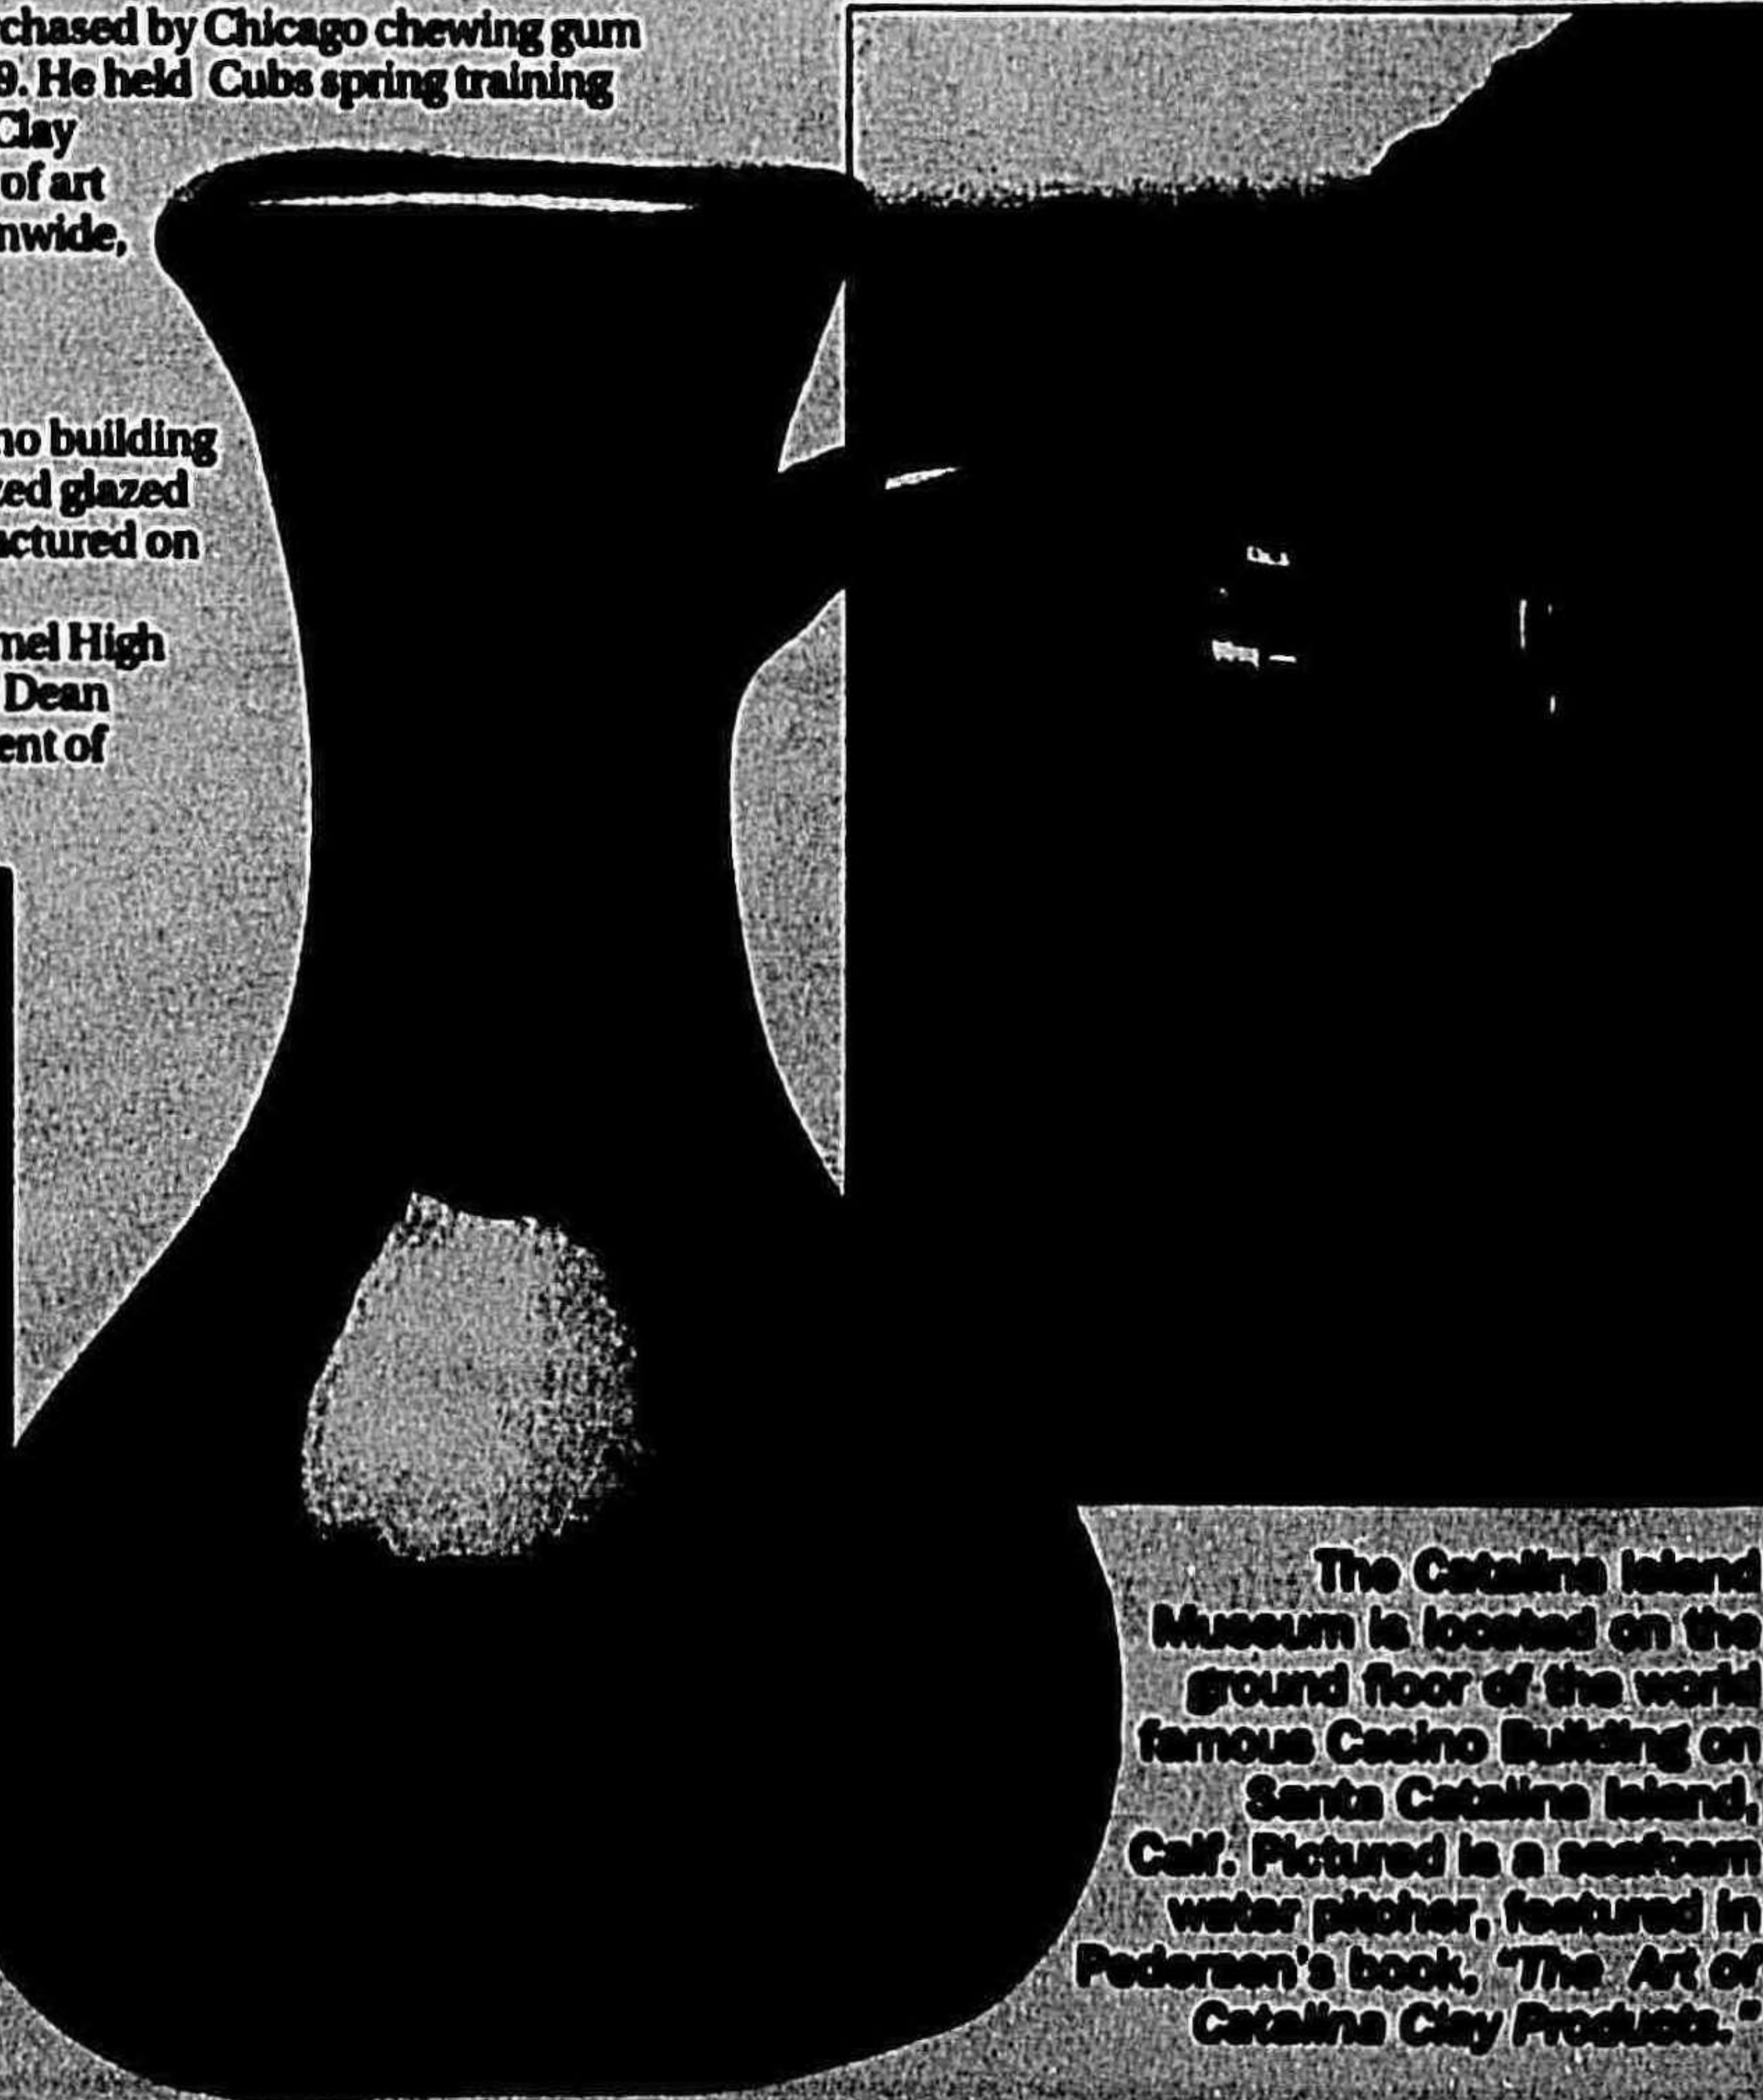

Santa Catalina Island was purchased by Chicago chewing gum magnet William Wrigley Jr. in 1919. He held Cubs spring training on the island until World War II. Clay products, including a unique line of art and dinnerware distributed nationwide, were a response to efforts to commercialize the island.

Pedersen also researched the construction of the distinctive casino building on Avalon Bay. The building utilized glazed interior tiles and roof tiles manufactured on the island.

Pedersen graduated from Carmel High School. Her parents are Linda and Dean Pedersen of Antioch. She is a resident of Avalon, Calif.

The Catalina Island Museum is located on the ground floor of the world famous Casino Building on Santa Catalina Island, Calif. Pictured is a seafarer water pitcher, featured in Pedersen's book, "The Art of Catalina Clay Products."

BOATS

He said he answers more visitors' questions on the art of canoe use at Bass Pro Shops Outdoor World than one might think.

Wind, waves and weather can be the most difficult factors to endure while out in a canoe. Canoe enthusiasts should always bring warm clothing and a water bottle to avoid dehydration. As for proper clothing, synthetic materials, which are not as expensive as they used to be, are recommended over jeans and anything cotton.

There are several types of water one will encounter while canoeing. There is flat water, like the Des Plaines is now; poky water; and moving water, which is classified at 2.5 miles an hour. Lastly, there is white water, which by definition, moves over 5 miles per hour.

Participants also learned how to identify the bow of a canoe from the stern based on how much room your legs have. They also learned how to correctly size an oar for their particular body types.

Whether just starting out, or if you are an expert at canoeing, the Lake County Forest Preserve Dist. has several spots along the Des Plaines River where one can launch a canoe.

According to the Lake County Forest Preserve's web site, at Sterling Lake at Van Patten Woods, Chandler's Boat & Bait, Inc. rents fishing boats, canoes and paddle boats. The canoes may be used on Sterling Lake or taken to the Des Plaines River. Please call Chandler's at (847) 382-3247 in advance for fees and launch rules.

In total, the Lake County Forest Preserves maintains four canoe launches located along the Des Plaines River. They are: Russell Rd., east of Rt. 41; Wadsworth Rd., east of Rt. 41; Oak Spring Rd., east of Rt. 21; and at Rte. 60, east of Rte. 21. They even offer a 34-foot Voyageur canoe that is available for rental.

'It takes more skill than people think. Each stroke you learn progresses from what you learned before.'

'Moulin Rouge' provides spectacular eye candy

I had never experienced a Baz Luhrmann production until I went to see "Moulin Rouge." I am familiar with his other films, "Strictly Ballroom" and the Leonardo DiCaprio vehicle "Romeo + Juliet," but never found any reason to see them.

The movie stars Nicole Kidman, Ewan McGregor and John Leguizamo.

I guess decided to see "Moulin Rouge" for no other reason than to see two of my favorite actors, McGregor and Leguizamo. Some readers might remember McGregor for his blockbuster role in "Star Wars: The Phantom Menace" or from some of his more arduous roles in "Trainspotting" or "Velvet Goldmine."

I've been a fan of Leguizamo from his stand-up and television specials.

As far as Nicole Kidman, I can't say I am much of a fan of hers. I've seen a number of her films and never been struck much by her talent, but I can say I was semi-surprised by her performance in "Rouge."

The film opens at the beginning of the 1900s in Paris where a young Englishman, Christian, comes to Paris to be part of the Bohemian arts movement.

The opening scenes move fluidly with wild colors and bizarre clips reminiscent of old Beate's movies mixed with "Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory" silliness.

McGregor sits down in his run down French flat to write a novel of the Bohemian idea of love when he realizes, he's never been in love. Enter Leguizamo as Toulouse-Lautrec and his merry band of actors.

They band together to write the greatest Bohemian play and attempt to sell their idea to the owner of the hottest nightclub in town, the Moulin Rouge.

The Moulin Rouge is portrayed as a decadent mix of Studio 54 and MTV's spring break. There's dancing, glamorous people and lots of skin.

While at Moulin Rouge, young Christian meets the star of the show head courtesan, Satine, played by Kidman.

Though I am not a fan of

Helen Mansfield

Kidman's, I can appreciate her performances in such period pieces as "Far and Away" and "Portrait of a Lady." Once again, she nails the part of an elegant courtesan and I was pleasantly surprised by her singing voice.

I must remind readers at this point that this film is a musical, but not in the traditional sense. People will be quoting Madonna lyrics and then abruptly break into song.

The whole plot falls into disarray and becomes incredibly silly, though Luhrmann attempts the entire time to keep it serious. Even with strong performances by all three lead characters, they all seem to be off with their comedic timing, adding to the silliness and making the movie painful to watch.

If it weren't for the lovely duets between McGregor and Kidman, I would have walked out in the first 20 minutes.

This film is certainly not for kids, I don't know a lot of women that would appreciate it and there are no redeeming scenes (or nudity) that men would appreciate.

This film is strictly for the curious and even then, I would only recommend it on bargain night or with free passes.

Rockin' Round the Clock at Lake County dance marathon

It's time to put on your dancing shoes and raise money for a good cause. On Saturday, June 9 at 6 p.m. people of all ages will be coming together for Lake County's 24-Hour Dance Marathon to raise money for community based eldercare services in Lake County.

The Waukegan Moose Lodge #706 will be hosting this event with a variety of music from polka to punk. Women of the Moose will provide some of the gastronomic delights.

You don't have to be a dancer in order to enjoy yourself at this marathon. One can enjoy the event from the sidelines by paying $5 per person. Moose Lodges throughout Lake County and other dancers will provide the competition. Dancers who compete will secure pledges. The Lodge that raises the most money will take home a winner's cup and prizes and awards will go to individuals and groups enjoying the event.

To find out more information on the marathon, contact Frank Phillips or Helen Hogan at Catholic Charities, Lake County Services at 782-4000.

"This event is bound to raise awareness in people of all ages while having a good time doing it," states Frank Phillips of Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Chicago, Division of Lake County. "The Waukegan Moose Lodge is prepared for 24-hours of non-stop dance competition."

Lake County's 24-Hour Dance Marathon is part of "Cheers for Years: Celebrating Healthy Aging." Six Chicago-based counties are participating with their own unique fund-raiser. In Lake County "Cheers for Years" is sanctioned by the International Order of Moose and is one of the primary philanthropic events in 2001 for the Waukegan Moose Lodge #706.

Proceeds from the events will go to local community-based services for eldercare.

THEATER REVIEW

Fabulous Fifties Fever fills Lincolnshire Marriott

Take a musical trip down memory lane

Memorabilia not Monica was what Fabulous Fever was all about. Arthur Godfrey and LucyLured the American family's taste in entertainment from a 10 inch screen in the living room. Smaller 45 records were spinning on the turntables of the new hi-fi sets, as we made the musical transition from the blaring "Big Band" sound to the beat of Rock and Roll, drowning out a more innocent way of life in the 1950s.

Four talented ladies are taking a very enthusiastic audience on a rockin' musical journey through that last age of idealism as the stage lights flicker on each night at the Marriott Lincolnshire Theatre, 10 Marriott Dr. in Lincolnshire.

Roberta Duchak, Anne Gun, Sue McMonagle and Rachel Rockwell, with the help of Marriott's fantastic audio system, bring back the music of the 1950s with a sound that outdoes the original by far.

Here you have four very talented solo artists at times out performing the original 1950s musical stars, featuring a veritable revue of "Your Hit Parade" in an era that introduced, Elvis Presley, Patti Page, Johnny Ray, the Ames Brothers, Dinah Shore and Frank Sinatra at his best, as well as a score of other musical talents including Connie Francis, Julie London, Jo Stafford and Frankie Lane, to name just a few.

"The Taffetas" is not musical play as such, but a melodious trip guided by four bouncy blondes just bursting with talent, aided by a demure fifties wardrobe and occasional schmaltzy chatter, a set consisting of whirling lit up giant records and three tunestastic on stage musicians.

Whether they're hopping to "Sh Boom," whining to "Cry," and "I'm Sorry," or dreaming to "The Tennessee Waltz," or "Fly Me to the Moon," these four high powered stars will take you home in their tea apron pockets, while you're loving every nostalgic minute of the fastest two hours in Marriott's history.

Don't miss this show for the entire family and all their friends, especially grandma and grandpa, now running through July at one of Chicago's finest live theatres. For tickets and showtimes, call 634-0100. —By Gloria Davis

FROM LAKELIFE 1

BOATS

He said he answers more visitors' questions on the art of canoe use at Bass Pro Shops Outdoor World than one might think.

Wind, waves and weather can be the most difficult factors to endure while out in a canoe. Canoe enthusiasts should always bring warm clothing and a water bottle to avoid dehydration. As for proper clothing, synthetic materials, which are not as expensive as they used to be, are recommended over jeans and anything cotton.

There are several types of water one will encounter while canoeing. There is flat water, like the Des Plaines is now; poky water; and moving water, which is classified at 2.5 miles an hour. Lastly, there is white water, which by definition, moves over 5 miles per hour.

Participants also learned how to identify the bow of a canoe from the stern based on how much room your legs have. They also learned how to correctly size an oar for their particular body types.

Whether just starting out, or if you are an expert at canoeing, the Lake County Forest Preserve Dist. has several spots along the Des Plaines River where one can launch a canoe.

According to the Lake County Forest Preserve's web site, at Sterling Lake at Van Patten Woods, Chandler's Boat & Bail, Inc. rents fishing boats, canoes and paddle boats. The canoes may be used on Sterling Lake or taken to the Des Plaines River. Please call Chandler's at (847) 382-3247 in advance for fees and launch rules.

In total, the Lake County Forest Preserves maintains four canoe launches located along the Des Plaines River. They are: Russell Rd., east of Rt. 41; Wadsworth Rd., east of Rt. 41; Oak Spring Rd., east of Rt. 21; and at Rt. 60, east of Rt. 21. They even offer a 34-foot Voyageur canoe that is available for rental.

'It takes more skill than people think. Each stroke you learn progresses from what you learned before.'

'Moulin Rouge' provides spectacular eye candy

I had never experienced a Baz Luhrmann production until I went to see "Moulin Rouge." I am familiar with his other films, "Strictly Ballroom" and the Leonardo DiCaprio vehicle "Romeo+Juliet," but never found any reason to see them.

The movie stars Nicole Kidman, Ewan McGregor and John Leguizamo.

I guess decided to see "Moulin Rouge" for no other reason than to see two of my favorite actors, McGregor and Leguizamo. Some readers might remember McGregor for his blockbuster role in "Star Wars: The Phantom Menace" or from some of his more arsy roles in "Trainspotting" or "Velvet Goldmine."

I've been a fan of Leguizamo from his stand-up and television specials.

As far as Nicole Kidman, I can't say I am much of a fan of hers. I've seen a number of her films and never been struck much by her talent, but I can say I was semi-surprised by her performance in "Rouge."

The film opens at the beginning of the 1900s in Paris where a young Englishman, Christian, comes to Paris to be part of the Bohemian arts movement.

The opening scenes move fluidly with wild colors and bizarre clips reminiscent of old Beate's movies mixed with "Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory" silliness.

McGregor sits down in his run down French flat to write a novel of the Bohemian idea of love when he realizes, he's never been in love. Enter Leguizamo as Toulouse-Lautrec and his merry band of actors.

They band together to write the greatest Bohemian play and attempt to sell their idea to the owner of the hottest nightclub in town, the Moulin Rouge.

The Moulin Rouge is portrayed as a decadent mix of Studio 54 and MTV's spring break. There's dancing, glamorous people and lots of skin.

While at Moulin Rouge, young Christian meets the star of the show head courtesan, Satine, played by Kidman.

Though I am not a fan of

movie review

Helen Mansfield

Kidman's, I can appreciate her performances in such period pieces as "Far and Away" and "Portrait of a Lady." Once again, she nails the part of an elegant courtesan and I was pleasantly surprised by her singing voice.

I must remind readers at this point that this film is a musical, but not in the traditional sense. People will be quoting Madonna lyrics and then abruptly break into song.

The whole plot falls into disarray and becomes incredibly silly, though Luhrmann attempts the entire time to keep it serious. Even with strong performances by all three lead characters, they all seem to be off with their comedic timing, adding to the silliness and making the movie painful to watch.

If it weren't for the lovely duets between McGregor and Kidman, I would have walked out in the first 20 minutes.

This film is certainly not for kids, I don't know a lot of women that would appreciate it and there are no redeeming scenes (or nudity) that men would appreciate.

This film is strictly for the curious and even then, I would only recommend it on bargain night or with free passes.

Satine (Nicole Kidman) and Christian (Ewan McGregor) tear up the dance floor in "Moulin Rouge."

Rockin' Round the Clock at Lake County dance marathon

It's time to put on your dancing shoes and raise money for a good cause. On Saturday, June 9 at 6 p.m. people of all ages will be coming together for Lake County's 24-Hour Dance Marathon to raise money for community based eldercare services in Lake County.

The Waukegan Moose Lodge #706 will be hosting this event with a variety of music from polka to punk. Women of the Moose will provide some of the gastronomic delights.

You don't have to be a dancer in order to enjoy yourself at this marathon. One can enjoy the event from the sidelines by paying $5 per person. Moose Lodges throughout Lake County and other dancers will provide the competition. Dancers who compete will secure pledges. The Lodge that raises the most money will take home a winner's cup and prizes and awards will go to individuals and groups enjoying the event.

To find out more information on the marathon, contact Frank Phillips or Helen Hogan at Catholic Charities, Lake County Services at 782-4000.

This event is bound to raise awareness in people of all ages while having a good time doing it," states Frank Phillips of Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Chicago, Division of Lake County. "The Waukegan Moose Lodge is prepared for 24-hours of non-stop dance competition."

Lake County's 24-Hour Dance Marathon is part of "Cheers for Years: Celebrating Healthy Aging." Six Chicagoland counties are participating with their own unique fund-raiser. In Lake County "Cheers for Years" is sanctioned by the International Order of Moose and is one of the primary philanthropic events in 2001 for the Waukegan Moose Lodge #706.

Proceeds from the events will go to local community-based services for eldercare.

THEATER REVIEW

Fabulous Fifties Fever fills Lincolnshire Marriott

Take a musical trip down memory lane

Memorabilia not Monica was what Fabulous Fever, Arthur Godfrey and Lucyruled the American family's taste in entertainment from a 10 inch screen in the living room. Smaller 45 records were spinning on the turntables of the new hi-fi sets, as we made the musical transition from the blaring "Big Band" sound to the beat of Rock and Roll, drowning out a more innocent way of life in the 1950s.

Four talented ladies are taking a very enthusiastic audience on a rockin' musical journey through that last age of idealism as the stage lights flicker on each night at the Marriott Lincolnshire Theatre, 10 Marriott Dr. in Lincolnshire.

Roberta Duchak, Anne Gun, Sue McMonagle and Rachel Rockwell, with the help of Marriott's fantastic audio system, bring back the music of the 1950s with a sound that outdoes the original by far.

Here you have four very talented solo artists at times out performing the original fifties musical stars, featuring a veritable revue of "Your Hit Parade" in an era that introduced, Elvis Presley,

Patti Page, Johnny Ray, the Ames Brothers, Dinah Shore and Frank Sinatra at his best, as well as a score of other tuneful talents including Connie Francis, Julie London, Jo Stafford and Frankie Lane, to name just a few.

"The Teller" is not musical play as such, but a melodious trip guided by four bouncy blondes just bursting with talent, aided by a demur fifties wardrobe and occasional schmaltzy chatter, a set consisting of whirling lit up giant records and three tunestastic on stage musicians.

Whether they're hopping to "Sh Boom," whining to "Cry," and "I'm Sorry," or dreaming to "The Tennessee Waltz," or "Fly Me to the Moon," these four high powered stars will take you home in their tea apron pockets, while you're loving every nostalgic minute of the fastest two hours in Marriott's history.

Don't miss this show for the entire family and all their friends, especially grandma and grandpa, now running through July at one of Chicagoland's finest live theatres. For tickets and showtimes, call 634-0100. —By Gloria Davis

ANTIOCH

No valid driver's license

William A. Soens, 30, of 1248 Indiana in Hammond, Ind., was arrested for driving without a valid driver's license on May 29 at noon at the intersection of Rte. 173 and Deep Lake Rd.

Police clocked the Rollins Leasing truck Soens was driving traveling 58 mph in a posted 40-mph zone. Soens' identifiers were checked through LEADS and came back with him having a license that expired on Sept. 21, 1999.

He was arrested and transported to the Antioch Police Dept. where he was issued citations for speeding, no valid driver's license and the operation of an uninsured motor vehicle. He was released on a personal recognizance bond pending his July 11 court date.

Esteban Dominguez Landero, 18, of 1411 W. 18th St. in Chicago, was arrested for driving without a valid driver's license on May 27 at 2:16 a.m. on Rte. 59 at Beyview.

Police was dispatched to the area for a possible DUI. Landero was traveling 21 mph in a posted 45-mph zone, and maintained a slow speed as the vehicle crossed over the centerline.

Landero told police he did not have a license and was driving a friend's car. His identifiers were checked through LEADS finding no valid license. Field sobriety tests were requested and passed with no signs of impairment.

Landero was arrested and transported to the Antioch Police Dept. where he was put through booking procedures and issued citations for improper lane usage and driving with no valid driver's license. He was released on cash bond.

Warrant arrest

Joseph M. Feltner, 21, of 209 W. North Ave. in Antioch, was arrested on warrant on May 28 at 2:35 a.m. on Lake St. at Henry St.

Police stopped a vehicle in which Feltner was a passenger for possible involvement with a disturbance at the Limerick Lounge on Telford St. The officer spoke with Feltner, another passenger and the driver of the vehicle about what happened at the Limerick before they left. Identifiers were obtained and checked on all three through LEADS/NCIC/SOS.

Information came back that Feltner was wanted by the Summit County Sheriff's office in Colorado on a warrant for larceny with a $1,000 bond, 10 percent applies.

Feltner was arrested and transported to the Antioch Police Dept. The on-call assistant state's attorney Karen Lentz approved one charge of fugitive from justice and requested that Feltner be brought to the Lake County Court house for a bond hearing.

Feltner was transported to the Lake County Jail to await the bond hearing.

DUI

Dante L. Parks, 38, of 22130 W. Calvin Dr. in Antioch, was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol on May 27 at 9:40 p.m. on Rte. 173 at Griman Rd.

Police clocked Parks' vehicle traveling at 74 mph in a posted 45-mph zone. As the vehicle proceeded past McMillan Rd. it crossed over the fog line by several feet nearly striking the guardrail. The vehicle then swerved back to the left and crossed over the centerline.

While speaking to Sparks, police detected the strong odor of alcoholic beverage on his breath. He was asked to exit the vehicle for field sobriety testing. Parks failed the first two segments, and the testing was stopped for safety reasons.

During the inventory for tow, the officer found two empty beer cans and one partially full beer that was still cold.

A check of Parks' identifiers revealed that his driver's license was being revoked.

Parks agreed to a breathalyzer test that yielded a .223 blood alcohol concentration. He was then issued the remaining citations of driving with a blood alcohol concentration over .08, operating an uninsured vehicle, driving while revoked and illegal transportation of alcohol. He was released on proper bond pending his court date.

John Phelps

Nice pipes!

This woman can sing! And Chicago knows it! How often does the opportunity arise where you can sing the national anthem at a professional sporting event?

Cathy Landgren, a former Grayslake and Lake Villa native now residing in Trevor, Wis., delighted the crowd at Comiskey Park by singing not only the national anthem, but the Canadian anthem 'Oh Canada' as well prior to the White Sox taking on Toronto May 30.

Landgren also performed the national anthem two years ago at a Sox game.

"Originally it was supposed to be a night game," she recalls. "But they moved it up to 3 p.m. There was still a good crowd but not as many fans as usual because it was during the day."

And not just anyone gets a gig like this.

"I went to WKRS radio and made a demo tape and sent it in to the Cubs, Sox and Brewers," she recalls. "The Sox were the first to call me. I was surprised and really excited. It's always been a childhood dream to sing at a national sporting event. They told me to pick a date."

And to no surprise, gigs such as this aren't afforded without a little prior experience.

An administrative assistant for Health-South Physical Therapy, Landgren had sung with the Waukegan Symphony for 20 years and CLC Chorus 10 years prior to that.

She has also performed the anthem at various locations, such as racetracks, including Hales Corners, Beaver Dam, Road America and Wilmot, where Lakeland's 'Let's Go Racing' columnist Mike Babicz is the 'Voice of Wilmot.'

"I just love to sing," said Landgren. "I sang all through grade school and high school. I've been singing since I was a little kid."

And if you're in this for the money, you're in the wrong line of work.

"Some places pay you and some just give you free tickets," she said. "But just to sing - it's a thrill and rewarding in itself."

As far as her performance last week, Landgren received a rousing ovation towards the end of the anthem.

"I'm definitely a first soprano," she said. "When I hold the high note at the end (of the anthem), everyone goes crazy. I guess that's a good thing."

Oh, by the way, the Sox prevailed in that game 4-3. Maybe Landgren should sing more often at Comiskey.

The 20th annual Vista Star Hospice Golf Outing will be held Wednesday, June 27, at Midlane Country Club, 4555 Yorkhouse Rd., Wadsworth. The day begins with a luncheon at noon followed by a shotgun start at 1 p.m. Cocktails, hors d'oeuvres buffet, raffle and awards follow at 6 p.m. The cost is $225 per person. All proceeds benefit Vista Star Hospice. Call 360-4248 for more information and to reserve your space.

The Larry Farmer Basketball Camps for boys and girls grades 2-11 will be held at Woodland Middle School in Gurnee on June 11-13. On June 11, the camp will meet from 11:30 a.m.-3 p.m. and from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. on both June 12-13. The cost for the camp is $90. QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Who was the Bulls career leading scorer prior to Michael Jordan?

Answer to last week's question: Wrigley Field was previously Weeghman Field, the home of the Federal League Chicago Whales until 1921. That's when chewing gum magnate William Wrigley bought the team. The park originally opened in 1914.

Look for the answer to next week's question.

Area players Ross, Lazarski earn tennis honors

By MIKE KRIZMAN
Correspondent

Two of the area's top high school tennis players have earned one of the biggest honors in the state.

Junior Parker Ross of Carmel and senior Todd Lazarski of Warren were recipients of the "Tom Pitchford Sportsmanship Award" for excellence in academics as well as sportsmanship.

The award is named after former Hersey High School coach Tom Pitchford, who ran the state tennis tournament for over 20 years. The award started in the late 1980s after his passing.

Ross, a Gurnee resident and one of the state's top singles players, has exemplified the meaning of sportsmanship with his cool demeanor on the court and respect for his opponents. Both qualities have helped him to become a state qualifier the last three years.

"I try to pride myself on sportsmanship," Ross said. "Sometimes your temper can get a hold of you but I try my best to keep it cool when I'm out there (on the court)."

Lazarski, also a Gurnee resident, won the award with good sportsmanship, but also a 4.3 GPA. It came as a surprise to him since he didn't place in the state tournament this past season.

"I thought they usually picked players who went deep into the state tournament," Lazarski said. "I was really surprised that I won. But coach Cohen (Warren tennis coach Greg Cohen) has had a lot of faith in me these last four years and it was a great honor for him to nominate me."

It was also a tremendous honor to the program, according to Cohen.

"This is the most exciting thing that has happened to our program in the six years that I have coached the varsity team," Cohen said. "To have a player, a very deserving player, be honored for his sportsmanship is fantastic. I am very happy that the committee agreed with how special of a young man that Todd Lazarski is and we are all very proud of him."

Up next for Ross and Lazarski is hopefully more tennis. Ross will compete in the United States Tennis Association (USTA) this summer and winter. With the demanding schedule the USTA brings, Ross hasn't decided on playing tennis at Carmel next year. But at this moment, it looks like he will.

"We're putting together a stronger schedule for next season so it's looking like I'll play high school tennis next year," Ross said.

Lazarski is headed for Marquette in the fall where he hopes to make their tennis team as a walk-on. This summer he plans to teach at Cohen's camp.

"Marquette has a strong Division I program so I hope to make it as a practice partner and hit with their best players," he said.

Area power lifter Meyer making noise

By JOE PRUSKI
Correspondent

Usually to be known athletically, you have to be able to smash home runs, knock down the clutch three-pointers, or catch that touchdown pass to win a big game.

But one local teen is making waves in a sport that is little known throughout the area.

Welcome to the world of Wadsworth's Jeremy Meyer, a 14-year-old power lifter. Meyer, who just began his competitive career, started lifting in August of 2000 at Golds Gym in Gurnee.

Under the guidance of trainer and world-class lifter Joe Callahan, he has had a great deal of success in his first few competitions.

By comparison to other lifters, "Jeremy is No. 1," said Callahan. "His maturity level and intensity are extremely high. He lifts for the love of the sport - he eats, drinks and sleeps it."

Meyer's first competition was held in Durand, Ill. at the end of April. Meyer, a 114-pounder competing in the 132-pound division, claimed first-place out of 13 competitors.

Next was Meyer competing at the Great Lakes American Power Lifting Association event. There, he also took first-place honors out of nearly 40 competitors.

His most recent competition however, has been his greatest triumph. With nearly 100 competitors from across the state gathered at North Park College, Meyer again finished first, this time breaking not only an Illinois State record, but a national record as well with a bench press of 148 pounds. Until Meyer came along, the National record had stood for the previous 11 years.

"It's nice, but I'm not really out to break records," said a modest Meyer. "I just want to lift to the best of my ability. If I break records, that's great."

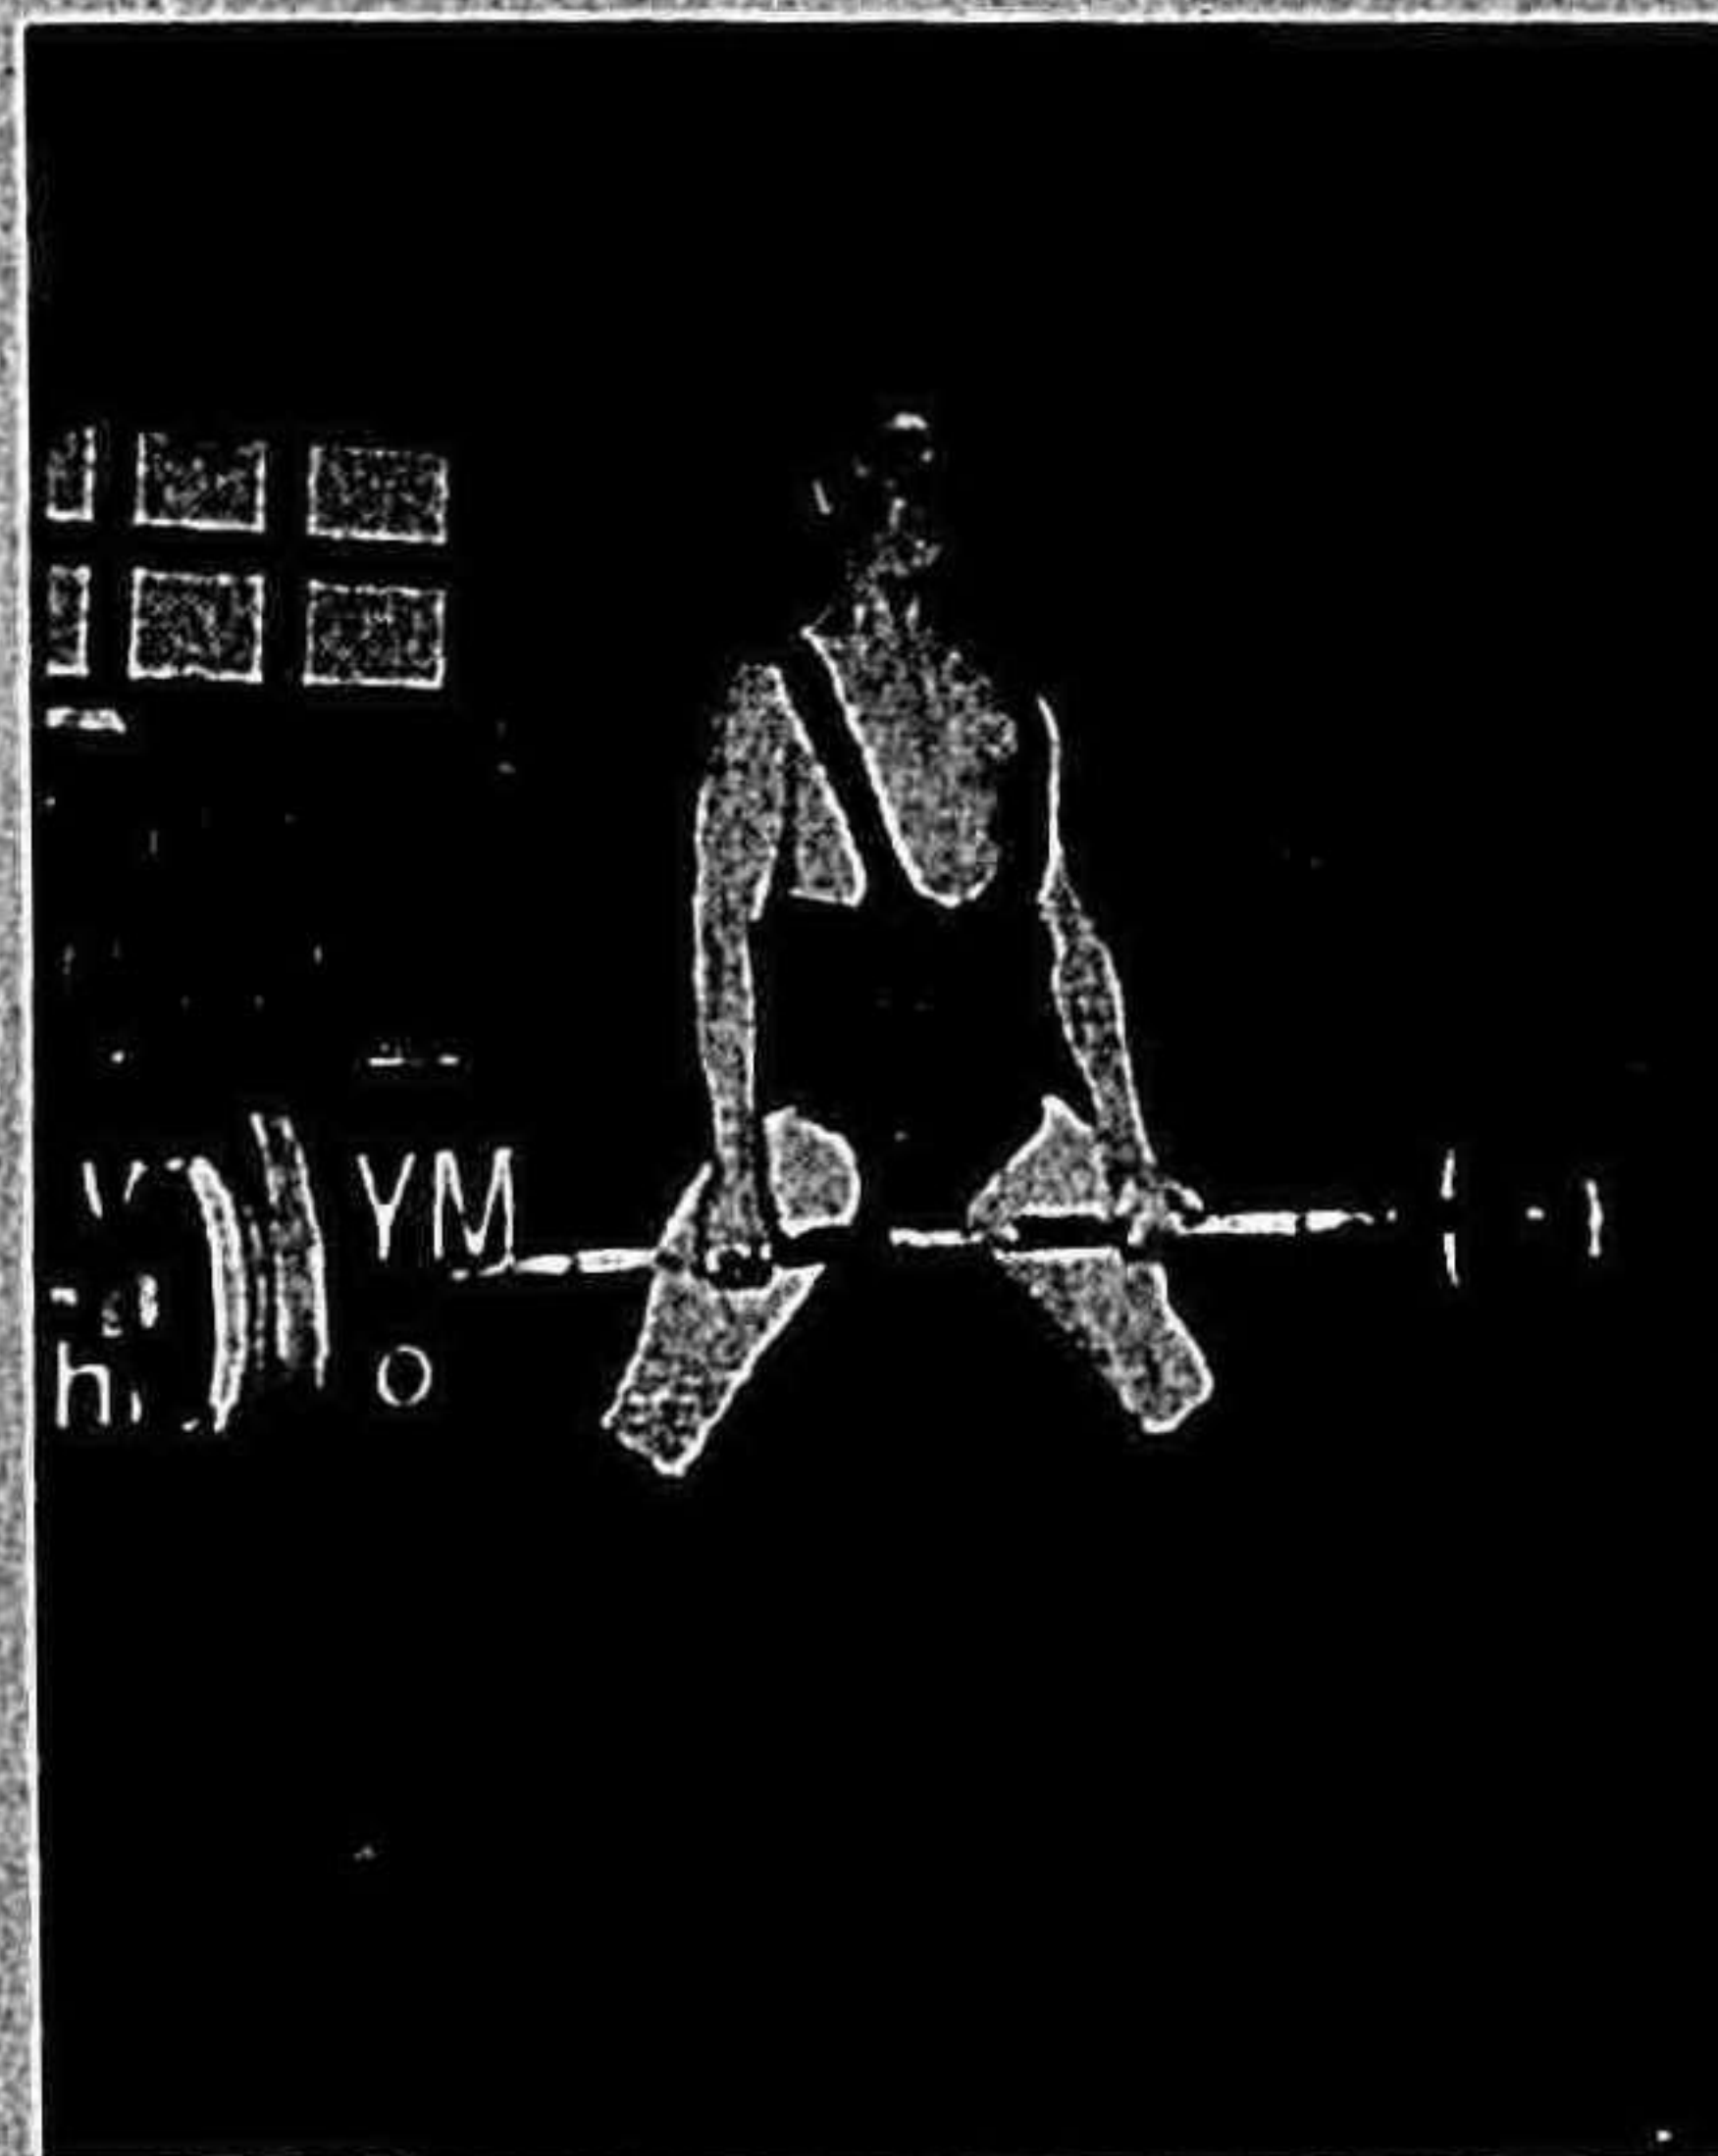

Also, while attending Viking Middle School, where he just graduated from, Meyer narrowly missed claiming the MVP of The 'Viking' Tournament by 1.25 points to an adult.

Regardless, a large part of Meyer's success can be attributed to his work ethic, which he believes is imposed upon him by Callahan.

"It (Jeremy's work ethic) is really intensified," said Callahan. "He just comes in every day ready to work. He's beyond his age group and has the best work ethic in the gym."

Meyer practices every weekday anywhere between 2-3 hours.

"He (Callahan) pushes me hard everyday,

Wadsworth's Jeremy Meyer, 14, dead lifts 319 pounds during the Viking Open. Meyer, who has become an accomplished power lifter in a short time, just missed earning MVP of the tournament when he was edged out by 1.25 points to an adult lifter.

it's a vigorous workout. We're close friends though, it helps having a close relationship," said Meyer.

As for his family, Meyer also feels that they have been nothing but supportive in his quest for power-lifting glory. His mother, Mary Meyer, has also had a lot to do with Jeremy's success.

"The whole family has always belonged to the gym," she said. "When I saw him lifting the weight he was lifting it was scary because he is so little (5-feet, 4-inches). We're behind him 100 percent."

Meyer would like to pursue power-lifting as a career someday but hopes to continue it even if doesn't use it as a career. Plenty of other options are open for the straight-A student, but for now he has one goal in mind.

"To become the best in the world," he said. "Or just lift the best that I can."

Meyer will compete in another power lifting event in Burlington, Wis. on June 10 in preparation for Nationals, which will be held in Lincolnwood later this summer.

Wilmot Speedway postponed again

Mother Nature scored another victory on June 2 as she forced the cancellation of the evening's race program at the Wilmot Speedway. Heavy rains late in the week forced speedway management to cancel the races for the third time this season.

Temperatures hovering around the 50 degree mark, coupled with strong Northwest winds, did nothing to dry out the drenched facility.

"We can't seem to get a break this year," said Promoter Andrew Calin. "The weather in April was far better than the weather all of May and now we lose the first event in June."

As a result of this rainout, speedway management has decided to add the sprint cars to the June 9 race program. The program June 9 will also include IMCA Modifieds, IMCA Hobby Stocks and INEX Legends.

"We've had such bad luck with weather we decided Mother Nature must have copy of our schedule and we needed to change things up to throw her off," Calin continued. "So we decided to bring in the sprints on June 9. With four classes scheduled, we will need to make some changes to the program, but we look forward to giving our fans a terrific night of racing."

As part of the program changes for June 9, Sprint cars will have one time trial lap as opposed to the normal two.

"It will be imperative that we start at 7 p.m. that night so we can get the entire program in before the 11 p.m. curfew," said Calin. "We're certain the Sprint drivers will recognize that they need to help out with the program so we can provide top quality entertainment and complete the program before the curfew."

Advance tickets for the Miller Lie King of Wisconsin World of Outlaws Gurnout show on June 16 are now on sale. Call the speedway office at 395-0500 to reserve yours. For any further information call the RaceLine 638-RACE or (262) 862-2446 or visit the web site at wilmotspeedway.com.

Chaplain paved way for hospital pastoral care

Pastor uplifted sick with spiritual messages

An ever smiling clergyman and a model railroad buff paved the way for the important role chaplains play in health care.

The Rev. George E. Franke believes that the coming together of Victory Memorial Hospital and Provena Saint Therese Medical Center as Vista Health will intensify the need for in-depth spiritual service.

Bearded and bespectacled, Reverend Franke spent 28 years ministering to the sick and family members of patients at Victory Memorial Hospital.

He retired May 31.

"First and foremost, George Franke is a minister with a calling for the sick," says Tim Harrington, CEO, Vista Health. "He is a person who other people come to in times of need. He set the tone of caring and compassion at Victory Memorial. He will be missed."

In 1973, Reverend Franke moved his family to Waukegan from Allentown, Pa. provided pastoral care and clinical pastoral education at Lake Forest Hospital and Provena Saint Therese Medical Center, as well as at Victory Memorial Hospital. During that time, he was an employee of the Lake County Chaplaincy Service. In 1979, Reverend Franke joined the Victory staff as director of Pastoral Care on a full-time basis.

'He set the tone of caring and compassion at Victory Memorial'

Tim Harrington,
CEO, Vista Health

During his tenure at Victory, the role of chaplain has become recognized as a distinct healthcare professional rather than as a parish clergy who does some work in a hospital, a change in outlook that Reverend Franke embraced and fostered over the years. As chaplain at Victory Memorial Hospital, Reverend Franke assisted the hospital in achieving its current state of receptivity to the role of the clergy and spiritual care in the care of patients.

"It was about 19 years ago, as we established the Oncology Service at Victory, that Reverend Franke and I became a team. Now I realize that there was another component to illness, a spiritual component, that needed to be addressed and George taught me the value of that," says Pat Lehr, R.N., case manager at Victory.

"George Franke developed the Psychosocial-Cultural-Spiritual Education Module at Victory in response to his desire to create an awareness and sensitivity of the differences in our changing population. He, with the assistance of other Victory staff, has educated most of the staff on how to relate to others who are of various cultures and backgrounds. That education has changed how most of us react to and accept differences among people," says Nancy Sellow, RN, vice president of Vista Health.

In addition to ministering to those in need, Reverend Franke has also played a role in providing education to other clergy. Over the years he has supervised over 200 persons in Clinical Pastoral Education. Many of those he taught have served in Lake County churches.

Change is the word that most frequently comes to mind when Reverend Franke looks back over his extensive career at Victory Memorial Hospital. Over the years he has witnessed physical changes like the relocation of the Cardiac Rehabilitation Department and the redesign of the nursing stations on 3West and 4West; program changes like the increased volume of outpatient surgeries and the advent of case management services; and financial changes like the impact of DRGs and HMOs.

Reverend Franke will continue to touch lives. Always involved in community, he has an eye toward continuing those activities. Reverend Franke looks forward to even more success with Crop Hunger Walk of Northern Lake County, an organization that raises funds to feed those in need. He has been an integral part of that organization's successful annual fall walkathon for many years.

He'll also be continuing his hobby of model railroading and creating scratch-built models of historic buildings. Then, there is his unfinished research into his family's genealogy and the publishing some of the writing he has accomplished through the years.

With his son's family in Spokane, Wash., his daughter's in Denver, Colo., and his second grandchild expected in August, Reverend Franke and his wife Barbara, also have some travel plans in their future.

New state budget rated 'Good Compromise'

A new state budget adopted in the final hours of the spring legislative session reflects a "good compromise that meets crucial state needs," State Rep. Andrea Moore (R-Libertyville) said.

Education remains the state's top budget priority. The $50 billion Fiscal Year 2002 state budget dedicates 51 cents of every new state revenue dollar to public education and increases the state's foundation funding level by $135 per student to $4,560. In addition, a newly-created Community College Capital Improvement program will provide $250 million over five years for crucial construction and renovation projects throughout the State.

"Education is important at every stage of life, from kindergarten through college," Moore stated. "I'm especially pleased that we were able to fund the new Community College Improvement program which may assist the College of Lake County with construction of their new technology building."

plauded the continued commitment to education.

"Schools across the state are crumbling and overcrowded," said Osmond. "I am pleased that our promise of 51 percent of new revenues will go to education."

The renowned Circuit Breaker program will be expanded to include Osteoporosis drug coverage. The additional drug will allow thousands of seniors who currently suffer from the disease to benefit from prescription coverage. The budget allocated $106.7 million to cover the additional seniors who will be eligible for the program.

Osmond sighted the increase in the States Circuit Breaker Program as significant. "We have been fighting to expand this program because so many senior sin our communities can benefit from prescription relief. Allowing for coverage of Osteoporosis will help many people. I hope that next year we will be able to raise the income eligibility, the Circuit Breaker Program truly is a great program that I will continue to fight to ex-

Workers rescue ducklings; mallard mom quack happy

Workmen accomplish 'Mission Impossible'

Construction workers hastily organized a rescue mission when they heard peeping sounds coming from a six-foot deep storm sewer.

Peering into a sewer hole at Center Street Square, a senior citizens housing project under construction in Grayslake, workers from Computer Power Systems found two ducklings swimming in semi-darkness in the murky water.

The ducklings apparently fell through the sewer grate and were left abandoned.

A tender hearted construction worker entered the sewer to rescue the junior quackers. Given food and shelter, the grateful ducklings peeped their thanks.

Jim Martin, owner of CPS, ordered a work halt and initiated a search project for a mother duck and a brood in hopes of reuniting what he took to be a separated family.

Members of the construction crew began scouring the neighborhood in the vicinity of Center St. After what seemed like hours, they found a Mama Mallard and some ducklings merrily waddling around doing what ducks do on a fine spring day. Martin and the CPS crew arranged a reunion. Or an adoption. They weren't sure. At least the wayward young'uns were happy to be part of a duck family again.

"Quack, quack," the happy mother duck sounded. Martin took that as mallard language for "thank you."

A happy ending to what started out as a sad story.

Brown-toothed attacker sought in park sex crime

Authorities are stepping up surveillance of Lake County Forest Preserve District facilities after an attempted sexual assault.

They are seeking a white male, 5 foot 9 inches, 160 pounds with dark colored hair cut in a close crew cut. He was described as having brown discolored teeth with a gap between the front teeth.

The assault occurred in the Libertyville Township Bicycle trail located in the area of Butterfield Rd., and Golf Rd. in unincorporated Libertyville Township.

Sheriff Gary Del Re said that at the time of the May 30 attack, the 32-year-old female victim was jogging on the trail when she was approached by the unidentified male white offender. As she was approached, the offender asked the victim what time it was. When the victim stopped to look at her watch, the offender forced the victim to the ground and attempted to sexually assault her. The victim was able to struggle free from the offender and fled from the area on foot northbound on the bike path. The victim was then able to notify police via 911 from a nearby residence.

A clothing description given indicated that the offender was wearing a beige or tan long sleeved shirt, black colored pants and black rubber soled dress shoes. The offender was also carrying a set of keys at the time of the attack.

Anyone having information pertaining to this incident or to the offender is encouraged to contact the Lake County Sheriff's Office Criminal Investigations Division at 360-5850.

The Forest Preserve District maintains a staff of rangers who check preserve parking lots regularly. The trails are not patrolled as often.

Loving, loathing school parents

When it comes to support of the educational process, parents and taxpayers always are walking a fine line. Educators love bond issue backers and fans cheering on the sports teams. They loath citizens who ask the tough questions about curriculum and test scores.

Right now officials of Dist. 46 are sitting on a powderkeg of parental dissatisfaction over proposed changes by the administration in teaching philosophy. Discord over theories on controversial Outcome Based Education was diffused when an exponent of new teaching methods was dropped only to be reignited when a specialist in change was hired to run a summer work shop for teachers in the district serving Grayslake and parts of the Round Lake and Lake Villa area.

A group of Dist. 46 parents, an estimated 300 strong, is unhappy with Supt. Kurt Anderson. They are fighting back with protest meetings, a barrage of leaflets and a red-hot e-mail network. Anderson's desire to replace irrelevant textbooks and institute student-driven learning initiatives is running into tough sledding.

Contrast this example of community involvement to the max with next door Dist. 116. Public apathy has reached a point where competition for the board of education is almost non-existent. There is unrest with district leadership. A growing number of citizens are frustrated to the point that they think the financially troubled system serving the Round Lake area should be dissolved or parceled out to neighboring districts.

Other school districts labor with similar financial problems and raise curriculum questions, but they operate without rancor and bitterness. Woodland Consolidated is one of the prime examples of a district beset with chronic growth problems that has maintained a high degree of public support. Woodland has a history of more than 40 years of positive community involvement. Support is based on mutual trust and keeping the public and parents informed almost to the point of information overkill. It works.

Two high school districts, Antioch and Wauconda, overcame ugly operational and public relations problems during the 1990's with new leadership. Libertyville High School educators struggled with a divided community until the formula to build a second school for Vernon Hills was devised.

Lakeland is replete with other accounts of community divisiveness in the conduct of the public schools that was overcome when citizens and parents rallied around reasonable and sensible leadership. The key, if there is such a way to unlock positive community support and involvement in the education process, is building and sustaining trust and respect in elected leaders and professionals employed to operate the system.

It's a fine line to be walked and it's never easy.

Remap benefits Crane and Kirk

In the horse-trading that goes into Congressional redistricting, Lake County's two congressmen look to be well locked in for re-election in 2002. With both Republican and Democratic leaders signing off early on, indications are strong for enactment of a remap that protects incumbency.

Congressman Philip M. Crane (R-8th) will have his west Lake County and northwest Cook County district expanded to include northeast McHenry County, including Woodstock and Crystal Lake, and far northern Lake County, including Mundelein and Zion. His district will be more Republican and more conservative than ever, fitting the GOP veteran like a glove.

Crane is losing part of Warren Township (Gurnee) and Libertyville, solid Republican territory, to Congressman Mark Kirk (R-10th) who can use more Republican votes. He failed to carry Lake County last year, needing GOP votes in the Cook County portion of his district to get elected.

Kirk is expected to gain southwestern Warren Township, essentially Wildwood and Gages Lake precincts, western Palatine Township in Cook County and more of Arlington Heights, where moderate Republicanism is in tune with his political philosophy.

Leaders of both parties took care of their own and left a downstate district up for grabs to achieve the mandated 19 districts required under the federal census mandate.

VIEWPOINT

Revolving door in prison system

Little known in connection with the public's "lock 'em up" attitude toward criminals is the "leav 'em out" practical side of the Illinois Dept. of Corrections.

Last year department records show 28,045 adult admissions. For the same period there were 27,636 adult "exits" as release is referred to in corrections jargon.

For a five-year period 1996 to 2000, there were 128,395 admissions and 121,136 releases. Prison bed space being what it is, it's necessary to leave an inmate out before the steel doors clank shut on a newcomer.

Corrections Dir. Donald N. Snyder Jr. points out that while the No. 1 goal in corrections is providing safe, secure and humane incarceration there is the challenge of correcting and changing behavior. Outside of prisoners on death row and serious offenders locked up for a long time, the typical Illinois prison inmate returns to society, often after a fairly short stay behind bars.

Illinois operates 27 adult correctional centers today. When the department was organized in 1970, the state had only seven adult facilities. Obviously, building prisons and filling them with inmates is a major growth industry in Illinois.

Good behavior pays big dividends in the Illinois correctional system. The department has a new parole initiative that will be one year old July 1. Every parolee is assigned to a specific agent where monitoring activity was shifted from a central office to the community.

Fortunately, Lake County and other collar counties don't contribute much to the prison population, only a little over 10 percent combined. Downstate contributes 28.6 percent. Nearly 60 percent of the Illinois prison population comes from Cook County and most of them are black. By race, the prison population is 25.1 percent white, 10 percent Hispanic, 64.6 percent black with the remainder traces of American Indian and Asian.

Drug offenses account for 39.5 percent of the admissions; property 30.5 percent; crimes against a person account for 20.3 percent. Sex crimes are 4.6 percent.

Cost of operating the Illinois prison system is well over $1 billion per year. Taxpayers spend staggering amounts to house prisoners. Cost of maintaining a 13-16 year-old at Illinois Youth Center-Murphysboro in a military style boot camp atmosphere averages $55,867. Tamm in far southern Illinois where 273 badest of the bad inmates are kept averaged $52,631. Average annual inmate cost among among the lowest tier institutions was around $15,000.

BILL SCHROEDER

Illinois is regarded to have one of the finest correctional systems in the nation. Being among the best comes at a pretty stiff price.

Mini protest

I have my own silly little protest against the outrageous gasoline prices. I refuse to fill up the tank all the way. Anyone else care to share their own special ways of coping with ransom at the pump?

Lots at Lambs

In the summer, Lambs Farm for adults with developmental disabilities becomes a veritable theme park of fun things to do for visitors. Judith F. Pietrowski, sales manager, is arranging company picnics on the premises off Rte. 176 near the Northern Illinois Tollway. Lots of things to do like a mini-train ride past Lambs Lake, riding an old-fashioned carousel, miniature golf, petting zoo, learn line dancing. Plus a big buffet and cold drinks. Lambs is in its third decade.

Church history

Bob Lindblad, president of the Lakes Region Historical Society, delights in digging up interesting tidbits about the past of old St. Ignatius Church, which has become a holding of the organization. The basic part of the church on Main St. was built in 1862 by a religious group known as the Cambellites. Inspectors marveled at its excellent condition in 1919 when the structure was remodeled with a stucco exterior and addition of a tower. Wonder what they'd say now that the basic structure is a 139 years old?

Days of Sousa

The days of John Philip Sousa at Great Lakes Naval Training Center will be relived when the Great Lakes band resumes its summer concert series for the public at 6 p.m. Sunday at Ross Field. Bring your own blankets and lawn chairs. The summer concert tradition began in 1917 when Sousa formed a band at Great Lakes. The second concert will be 8:30 p.m. Sunday, July 1 when the band directed by Lt. Kevin Blase will be part of the three-day open house celebrating the base's 90th anniversary.

Studies of abused children in the general populace reveal nearly half have mothers who are also abused—making wife abuse the single strongest identifiable risk factor for child abuse.

PARTY LINES

PARTY LINES, THE LAKELAND NEWSPAPERS' COLUMN OF POLITICAL OPINION, IS PREPARED FROM STAFF REPORTS.

Golf scores replace campaign oratory

This is the time of year that golf is uppermost in the minds of politicians and the party faithful. Lake County Recorder of Deeds Mary Ellen Vanderventer regards her annual golf outing as the kick off event for summer fun. "Sold out every year," Vanderventer reports. This year's outing (56th annual) will be held rain or shine Wednesday, June 13, at Orchard Hills Golf Course.

Vanderventer has lined up State Sen. Terry Link (D-Vernon Hills) and Atty. J. Ted Kudrka as hosts, which means they'll be responsible for selling tickets. Foursomes still can be reserved by calling (847) 248-4404.

Thursday, June 28, the Lake County Republican Central Committee takes over Midland Country Club for golf during the day and a dinner in the evening. Golfers or diners—or both—are invited to call (847) 680-6880 for reservations.

One-two-three-Fore

Dr. Michael Anderson, superintendent of Lake Villa CC. School Dist. 41, is an avid duffer. His office is nearly a museum of golf memorabilia. Given his enthusiasm for the sport, it was a better-than-par moment when he found out that the site of the new elementary school, to be located at Rte. 59 near Dering, was once a golf course. Originally one of the Lehmann family's courses, it was later run by the Cedar Crest Lodge and Farm. Back then, the Columbia Bay Brewery was a restaurant known as The 19th Hole. According to Anderson, the school will be constructed somewhere around the former sixth or seventh green.

Reasons for recess

Associate Judge Victoria Martin had good reason for a court recess. She was at Woodland Middle School, Gages Lake, describing to eighth graders how the criminal justice system works.

Favorite flower

County Board Rep. Bonnie Thompson Carter (R-Inglewood) has a favorite flower, forget-me-not. She's combining her love of gardening with politics with a forget-me-not fund-raiser Thursday, June 21, at Marvella's Restaurant, Inglewood. Bring a cash bouquet at 6 p.m.

Starck reality

Judge Christopher C. "Tip" Starck is continuing to raise funds to retain his seat as a Circuit Court Judge. Judge Starck, a resident of Mundelein, has been a judge since 1989 and was appointed a Circuit Judge by the Illinois Supreme Court in March, 2000 to fill the vacancy of Bernard Drew. He is currently the presiding judge of the Criminal Division of the courts and serves on the Supreme Courts Special Committee on Capital Punishment. He will stand for election in 2002. Bernard Wysocki, Tom Adams, Jan Zebus and JoAnn Gensend are assisting with his re-election efforts. Starck is a Republican.

Gone, going

Waukegan Port Authority directors are searching for a replacement for retired Harbormaster Mary Wilbur. She intends to remain active in public affairs as president of the Downtown Waukegan Assn. After successfully helping guide local elections through the introduction of optical scanning balloting counting Elections Chief, Colleen Connolly in the Lake County Clerk's office, has returned to private life with no plans for the immediate future. With a change of administration, Antioch Community Development Director Claude Lalmore left quickly for a key administrative post in Fox Lake. Reaction in both communities is that "Antioch's loss is Fox Lake's gain."

Sense of humor

At one of his first public appearances after elected mayor of Waukegan, Dan Drew was introduced as Dan Starck. Drew enjoyed a laugh with his audience. Drew succeeded Bill Starck.

Joe DiMaggio, from hero to heel?

A Simon and Garfunkel song from the movie, "The Graduate," starring Dustin Hoffman and Anne Bancroft, goes like this:

"Oh oh oh, Mrs. Robinson, Jesus loves you more than you will know. Wow wow wow — 'Where have you gone, Joe DiMaggio? A nation turns its lonely eyes to you ... Hey, hey, hey.'"

From 1936 to 1951, Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees became one of baseball's greatest superstars ever. And in 1941 he set an amazing record that still stands, getting at least one hit in 56 consecutive games.

An article in the May issue of the AARP Bulletin, a newspaper aimed at retired people, many of whom remember that summer well, recalls that millions of Americans were gripped by a raging fever. Every day they stopped whatever they were doing to find out if DiMaggio had kept alive "The Streak," one of the greatest feats in sports history.

Elliott Carlson writes in the AARP Bulletin, "DiMaggio's reputation for baseball perfection reached almost mythical proportions. He was, at every turn, one man we could look at who made us feel good, the icon of elegance and manly class."

"Jokin' Joe" was a national hero until the day he died in 1936 at 85." He had charisma before America knew the word. In Yankee Stadium he was a god.

Why, he even had wood and won the luscious movie star, Marilyn Monroe.

But last year author Richard Ben Cramer came out with a controversial biography, "Joe DiMaggio, the Hero's Life." Cramer portrays DiMaggio as "a greedy, stingy, petty, lonely and utterly self-obsessed individual, a guy who accepted money from mobsters and sex with showgirls."

According to Cramer and his sources, the marriage to Monroe was ruined by DiMaggio's suspicions and jealousy of anyone she was with. And then it turned violent. After watching her film a sexy scene for the 1957 movie, "The Seven Year Itch," Marilyn is quoted as telling a friend, "Joe slapped me around the hotel room until I screamed. That's it! The first time a man beats you up it makes you angry. When it happens a second time you have to be crazy to stay. So I left him."

She told the court (and the world) that Joe's cruel indifference had driven her to divorce. She said, "My husband would get in moods where he wouldn't speak to me for five or 10 days."

In 1988, Time magazine, celebrating its 75th year, brought together the movers and shakers and celebrities who had graced its cover over those many years. According to Cramer, "Bill Clinton wooed DiMaggio at his table, but Joe hated Clinton, hated his politics, hated his style. And that Monica Lewinsky! You know, we paid for that White House. He shouldn't be doing that there."

So Joe got to sit with Henry and Nancy Kissinger, and the editors of Time put Hollywood couple Mel Brooks and Anne Bancroft at that same table.

Joe asked his younger pal and escort, Dr. Rock Polkano, why the editors did that. Dr. Rock said, "Joe, get it? They sat DiMaggio with Mrs. Robinson!"

"You know, Doc," Joe said, "You might be right. You know, that song will still be around after I'm gone."

drives a woman to finally abandon her relationship and to seek protection and help.

Of women coming into shelter, more than half report their children have been physically, emotionally and sometimes sexually abused. The abuser is two to three times more likely to be the father than the woman herself. Many victims report that their abuser threatens or attacks the children as a way to control and hurt the mother even more.

If we are to seriously address child abuse, we must also address the abuse of their mothers, recognizing the links between these violent behaviors found in the home. Without intervention, counseling and education, our next generation is doomed to repeat what they learn from the examples in their home.

Working with moms and children together breaks the cycle: It stops the violence for mothers, and builds better examples for their children to model as they grow into adulthood and establish relationships of their own.

Bar spouses

A staggering amount, 70 percent or more, of our property taxes pay for our government run education system. The education establishment, the teachers union and administrations are exploring ways to raise more money. They have proposed local income taxes, and "gutting" property cap legislation for "the children." We must realize these schemes only emphasize more money for union and administration salaries and perks, and less time in the classroom and less education for "the children."

These educators of the under funding of their compensation and retirement packages are aided by their local school boards which are made up mostly of the beneficiaries of public school expenditures, the employees, the teachers or their spouses and parents.

All elected officials are required to file statements of economic interest annually to inform the public of any financial benefit or conflict the official may have with the public body. This is good and is intended to expose and discourage the officials' participation in decisions where there is a self-serving financial benefit.

If you take the time to think about the impropriety of elected officials benefiting from the public body on which they serve, maybe we should also consider the financial benefit of employees, teachers or their spouses and parents serving on school boards. The salaries of employees and teachers are significant. It is reasonable to assume board decisions where teachers or employees serve cannot be made free of prejudice and in the best interest of the district taxpayers.

Likewise, the educational cost and financial benefit to parents of public education where $6, $8, $10 or $12,000 or more per student is expended creates a financial conflict of interest for parents. Many school board members are held hostage to the education establishment because they have children in the school, and would never want to make a decision that would be in conflict with the establishment's agenda for more money in fear of reprisals against their children.

I, propose as part of any reform movement or initiative, parents, employees, teachers and their spouses be barred from serving on a school board where they are employed or have a child in school. What school boards need are professional or businessmen and women who want to serve as public servants for the benefit of their communities.

Just say no

Two front page stories, one on the census saying there are 735 new children in Hainesville. Another exclaiming "Graylake High Starts Out."

Is there any more dramatic evidence that the method given us by the State of Illinois to pay for teachers, equipment and buildings, not to mention programs, is so far out of whack it defies words? Those 735 Hainesville kids at roughly $6,000 a year is $4.4 million each and every school year. Multiply $4.4 million times each of their 12 school years. Do the math. Then, try to predict inflation on that number and normal budget increases resulting in something much more than $6,000 each year.

Finally, you need to call your buddy down at the brand new village hall. You need to bet him/her to say "no" to pro-growth mayors who are jamming our roads and ruining our schools. Tell your buddy on the village board to get together with these other members of that village board and stop new home development until the rest of us in the community can catch our breath.

You see, he/she is blindly "obeying" your mayor on a course for ruin. Please do it right now. Please then write your state representatives and senators to tell them we will not defeat them in the next election if they have the guts to fix the system and work toward finding schools out of general revenue and not property tax.

vices, education and public policy."

Breaking the cycle of violence is the object of "Safe from the Start," a bipartisan, state-federal initiative announced by Illinois Attorney General Jim Ryan and U.S. Senator Dick Durbin. The program seeks to identify and provide help for children age 5 or younger who are victims of abuse or have witnessed acts of violence. Sen. Durbin has indicated he will work to see this program initiated in other states. We applaud the effort to identify children at risk and to make appropriate services available to them.

Breaking the cycle of violence has been the mission of A Safe Place and other domestic violence programs for more than two decades. In this country, one in every four women will be abused by an intimate partner, someone who says he loves her, sometime in her lifetime. That's an amazing 3-4 million women each year. Domestic violence assaults result in more injuries requiring medical treatment than those of rape, automobile accidents and mugging combined.

Lake County alone sees 3,000 domestic violence cases go through its courtroom each year—a figure high enough to warrant the opening of a second domestic violence courtroom on May 21 to handle this onslaught of cases.

The youngest of domestic violence victims are child witnesses to this crime. An estimated 3.3 million children each year see the violence, hear the violence, are awakened from the innocence of a child's sleep by the violence perpetrated against their mothers.

Make no mistake, mother abuse is child abuse.

When a mother is abused, her children are 6-15 times more likely to suffer abuse themselves. Many times, this is the act that Kid's can be taught to control distractibility!

Hi Dr. Singer,

I wanted to make sure of something you said because I wasn't sure about what you meant. You have said that you don't believe in ADD. Do you mean you don't believe kids have it or do you mean something else? Because I am here to tell you that I have a kid who is just a jitterbug and does not attend. We had to put him on medication because the teacher was all over us about it, but we are not happy about doing it. We haven't noticed much in the way of all the symptoms going away, but we have noticed a real dulling of his personality and that not only scares us but also makes us feel very guilty. We have read your column before and I swear I thought I saw you say that you have a way to help distractibility without the medication and I wanted you to tell me what you mean. I would rather have scraped my skin off than put my child on medication, but I didn't know what to do. Certainly, if you know of something else that works to change this stuff, please, by all means, tell me. V.F.

Hi V.F. and the little jitterbug!

I think that is a really cute description of a child, but I'm sure it isn't a cute situation! Please do not scrape your skin off yet, because I do have some positive things to tell you. The answer is, in my opinion, that there is definitely something else to do first. I have lots of parents come in to see me who feel exactly like you are feeling. The guilt is pervasive when a parent has to make a decision like this and most parents really labor over that decision. Unfortunately, the pressure from the outside world can be amazing and sometimes, unrelenting. As I said, many parents come in to see me when their child is on medication for distractibility. Through working with behavior and processing, I teach parents how to effectively respond to change unwanted behavior and I teach kids how to attend and not give in to impulsiveness. Many of the people I have worked with have successfully been able to choose to wean their children off of the medication and then to live a drug free life without all the distractibility. The key here is that I teach parents and teachers how to get kids to control their own behaviors and choices without needing the medication. In other words, I teach self-control which is extremely important for any child's future. I have been successful with this enough times to be able to say that it works.

Now to answer your other questions, it is not that I believe that no child is distractible for real. I have worked with enough distractible kids to know that there is distractibility out there. I believe that the symptoms that make up ADD do exist in force out there. Too much force. And in a minute I will explain why I think that is happening and what to do about it. What I do not believe in and what I take exception with is medication as a first line of intervention. I am a strong believer that except for life threatening, last resort, medication should not be the "be-all end-all" for behavioral problems. Unfortunately it has become the standard operating procedure of many in this country and the more unfortunate outcome of that is parents like yourselves feeling very pressured into taking steps you don't feel comfortable with. Interestingly, I constantly hear back from parents, after we are finished working together, that the teacher and school staff are amazed that the answer was actually very simple and didn't need medication in the 1st place. I am hoping to keep spreading that word as far and wide as possible because I want all kids who have problems with distractibility and impulse control to live a drug-free life and have all the tools available to them to know how to control themselves and be able to make the right choices.

I believe that most distractibility is about a lack of training for children in how to control themselves. Self-control is imperative to live a happy and secure life. Without self-control life can be very hard to navigate. In today's world, we have astronomical numbers of children on medicine for distractibility. I think that is a huge problem. I believe that the kids who are being diagnosed with ADD need something else besides medication and that is training in self-control. I know this, because I am in the every day business of teaching kids self-control and teaching parents how to get that self-control from their kids without as much effort as they think. Since I see that changing in kids daily, without referring for medication, I have to believe that there are a lot of other kids out there who are also struggling with self-control issues and not being given the chance to learn how to change that themselves.

I believe that I can identify why there is such a huge increase in kids who are being labeled distractibility problems. The problem is two-fold. Before I mention them, you need to know my blame does not go to parents. My blame on this goes to the last several decades of behavioral information that has taught parents really bad lessons. Parents want to do the best for their kids, so they listen to that information. Unfortunately in the last several decades most of the advice has been severely lacking in good judgement. The first problem I see is one of ignoring. Many sources of information, in the last several decades, have suggested strongly that parents ignore bad behavior so it will go away. Never in my entire professional career and personal life have I ever seen a child stop misbehaving because an adult ignored the behavior. Usually, the child just becomes louder and more irritating to get the attention of the adult better. The kid somehow thinks you didn't hear it, so he or she makes it more hearable. You have all witnessed this. This is the kid in the grocery store who didn't get what he wanted and now is pulling things off the shelves and screaming as loud as he can, while his mom is just going about her business as quickly as possible, feeling mortified, but trying hard to ignore because it's what she read to do. Or, it can be the kid who is in the post office with mommy and mommy isn't paying attention, so he starts to bang on the metal display case in the center of the post office. The more she ignores, the louder the banging gets (these are real life situations that we got to witness, by the way.) Here is the problem with ignoring...by ignoring, you are not extinguishing the behavior. Instead, you are giving your child a strong message that being out of control will not be stopped by anyone. That he or she can do whatever he or she feels like at any time without restraint. Stop and think about my last two statements. It's pretty powerful stuff. That is where, I believe, distractibility begins. So, if we are ignoring this behavior when the child is 3, why does the same behavior become a problem when the child is 6 and in school. Nothing has changed within the child, but now we look back at when he was 3 and say the medical distractibility must have been there even then because we remember the banging at the post office. Untrue to the maximum. The problem was in the ignoring. The child never learned that it wasn't o.k. to do that. If he would have been taught how to do it right, maybe now at 6 he'd have the self-control and be able to do it on his own. Out of control, obnoxious behavior grows if practiced and not stopped. There is a most definite way to stop that kind of behavior in it's tracks immediately and make it go away for good. I train parents everyday how to do that. Ignoring is never a prospective candidates.

A number of free workshops were provided on how to find jobs on the internet, how to find jobs if you're over 50 and résumé writing tips.

Businesses representatives came from fields including manufacturing, insurance, pharmaceutical, banking, government, education, business and restaurants attended the event.

Agencies, individuals help during stand-off

Local man assists fallen trooper

By BRENDA BALIN-BEITSCHER
Staff Reporter

"There must have been at least 100 agencies involved," said Lindenhurst Community Officer Rebecca Albrecht, recalling all the distant and local police and rescue squads that participated in the effort to end the June 4 stand-off between police and shooter Eric Hansen.

During the initial confrontation with the gunman, Lake Villa resident Edward Pili risked his own life to staunch the wounds of an undercover Illinois State Trooper who was struck by one of the first shots fired by Hansen. Pili rushed over to the injured trooper, lying in a pool of blood, and used his own jacket and shirt to try to stop the bleeding from the neck and shoulder wounds the officer sustained.

During the 14 hours Hansen was barricaded inside the Eagle Country Market on Grand Ave. in Lindenhurst, agencies from all over Lake County and northern parts of Cook County responded to the crisis.

Major help came from NIPAS, the Northern Illinois Police Alarm system, which sent people and equipment in from all over the county.

Mundelein's Deputy Chief Pender was one of the police officials who personally responded when the call went out.

Besides the State Police, who brought all their best tactical equipment to the scene, further equipment and personnel were provided by the Lake County Sheriff's Office and its reserves, including its SWAT team.

Lindenhurst Police Chief Jack McKeever was out of town when the occurrence took place. During the crisis, the police department was under the direction of Commanders Kevin Klehs and George Moravec. Moravec was on watch when the incident began.

While all of Lindenhurst's Police force was concentrating on the event, regular calls were covered by the Lake Villa Police Dept.

The scene was secured and traffic was directed away from the cordoned area by officers from Lindenhurst as well as nearby and distant localities such as Lake Villa, Gurnee, Grayslake, Antioch, Fox Lake, Round Lake Park-Hainesville, Lincolnshire, Bannockburn, Lake Forest, Deerfield, Bolingbrook and Glenview.

Other agencies involved were the Lake Villa Rescue Squad, Lake Villa Fire Dept., Quad area Fire Dept., Flight for Life (which airlifted the wounded trooper to a hospital in Park Ridge), the Illinois Dept. of Tobacco and Firearms, U.S. customs and the U.S. Marshal.

Negotiating teams were involved, as were the Major Crimes Task Force and the Metropolitan Emergency Support Services.

Press relations were handled on-site by Lake County Sheriff's Office Press Officer Deputy Chief Fred Heideke.

State Police also had a plane and helicopter in aerial surveillance of the crime scene.

Other private citizens and public officials stepped forward to support the multi-agency effort to capture Hansen.

Lindenhurst Mayor Paul Baumunk was at the site for a number of hours.

"He nearly pulled an all-nighter," recalled Albrecht.

Lindenhurst Village Engineer Wesley Welch brought out blueprints of the Eagle Market to assist police in locating Hansen after he barricaded himself in the market.

Burger King manager Bob Ziegler cooperated as the police turned his restaurant into a command post during the crisis.

The management of the Tru-Value Hardware store in Linden Plaza, Rick Laurence and Charlie Warren, opened the hardware store to provide tarps and other items to help the police cover the windows of the Burger King to minimize the possibility of Hansen targeting police personnel inside.

Prime time Restaurant owner David Keith kept his kitchen staff on hand to make pizzas to feed 150 squads from all over the county at the crime scene.

RJ's eatery in Lindenhurst made pizzas for the Eagle customers and staff who were at the police station giving witness statements.

Police staffing the Lindenhurst station were also fed by Pizza 911 of Lake Villa and White Hen Pantry in Lindenhurst.

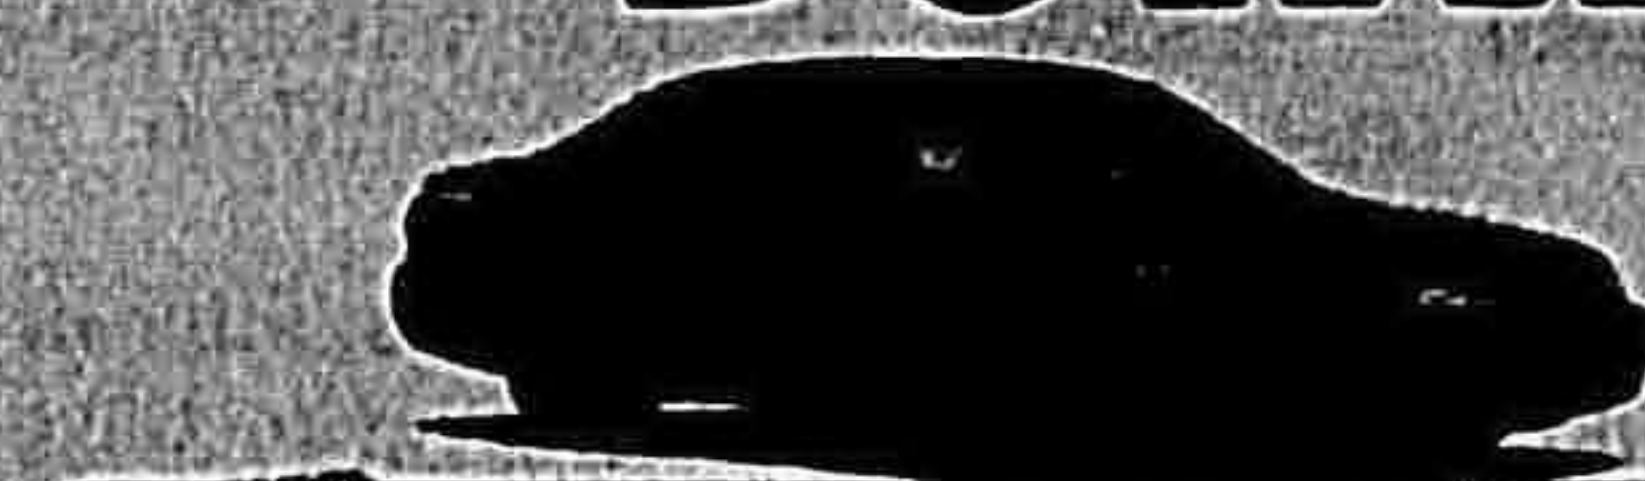

A Lindenhurst physician, Dr. Philippa Devaney, brought lunch over for police officers.

"Two anonymous guys we only know as Jim and Bob brought donuts and milk to the police at the crack of dawn," Albrecht said. "Everyone who helped should be thanked."

Rep. Kirk's Amendment to HR 1 receives 425 House Votes

U.S. Rep. Mark Kirk (R-IL) joined with U.S. Rep. Rick Larsen (D-WA) to introduce the Kirk-Larsen Amendment to H.R. 1 the "No Child Left Behind Act of 2001." The amendment, which expressed the sense of Congress to provide full-funding for Impact Aid, passed by 425 votes in the House of Representatives. The House also passed H.R. 1 by an overwhelming bipartisan vote of 384-45.

"As the Congress focuses on improving military pay and benefits, we must also look out for our military children," said Congressman Kirk. "I am encouraged by the overwhelming bipartisan support for the Kirk-Larsen Amendment. The children of our service men and women deserve to attend good schools. Impact Aid provides critical dollars to school districts across the country affected by the federal government."

Impact Aid was created in 1950 when Congress recognized its obligation to assist school districts and communities that experience a loss in local property tax revenue due to a federal presence. Between 1950 and 1969, Impact

Kirk

"The quickest way to take a soldier or sailor's mind off their mission, is to have them worrying about their children's education," said Kirk. "Kids from military families come from some of the hardest working, most patriotic families, but the schools they attend sometimes face bankruptcy. Men and women who volunteer to go into harm's way defending our freedoms deserve our support. I wrote my first bill, H.R. 1716 to fully fund the Impact Aid Program. The strong support shown for the Kirk-Larsen Amendment is the opening bell to a national debate on how we meet the needs of military and other federally-impacted children."

Aid was fully-funded by Congress. Today, funding has fallen to only 46 percent of the dollars needed to educate federally-impacted children. As a result of this shortfall, the education of our military and other federally-dependent children is suffering.

In early May, Congressman Kirk introduced H.R. 1716 in the U.S. House of Representatives. The bill, entitled "GRADE-A" (Government Reservation Accelerated Development for Education Act), would alter the status of two sections of Impact Aid law, making them entitlements. The goal of this legislation is to improve federal Impact Aid for military dependents and other children living on federal lands. In the 10th Congressional District the North Chicago, Highland Park and Glenview school districts are all impacted by federal housing.

The Kirk-Larsen Amendment to H.R. 1, expressing the sense of Congress to provide full-funding for Impact Aid, was endorsed by the National Association of Federally Impacted Schools and countless school administrators across the nation.

Today's styles in wedding formal wear are moving from traditional

By LISA ROWE
Staff Reporter

For the past few years, weddings have gradually moved from traditional styles and have become more bold and daring. An elegant wedding doesn't have to be costly, but choosing dresses and tuxes that stray from the norm can add a subtle yet bold statement to any wedding.

For the indoor traditional wedding, most brides are sporting a strapless dress with custom made long sleeves along with a long tulle. For outdoor garden weddings, a strapless dress made with lighter fabrics along with gloves add a simple yet elegant look to the bride and her gown. In warmer weather, such as a wedding in the Caribbean, most brides are choosing a flowing chiffon dress with a small wrap to accent the gown.

According to Volle, owner of Volle's Bridal Boutique, 53 S. Old Rand Rd. in Lake Zurich, 438-7603, brides are adding a personal touch to their gowns with chokers and long gloves. The most popular color for bridesmaids dresses this year is periwinkle, a shade of violet. Many of the bridesmaids dresses are also strapless accented with long gloves or a small wrap.

Brides wishing to add a touch of color to their gowns can order a custom-made gown through the bridal shop. Colors can be added underneath the gown, which can be seen through lace cutouts. Bridal designers are adding color to their bridal gowns with colorful beaded flowers, satin floral designs and colored gloves to accompany the gowns. To add the finishing touches to a simple dress, some brides are opting for hats, leaving the traditional veil behind.

Not only are bridal dresses becoming more defined, but tuxedos are now looking sharper. Many of the tuxes have anywhere from the traditional two or three buttons, up to six buttons.

"Men are getting away from the traditional" according to Larry Hanson, owner of BJ's Fashions for Men, 931 Main St. in Antioch, 395-6212. "We try to cater to some of the newest trends."

Black is still in style for men's tuxedos, but a few men are turning to white tuxes, depending on what type of wedding is planned. Men don't have to limit themselves to the traditional style according to Sandi Slegmeyer, owner of Jack's Four Squires, 414 Lake St. in Antioch, 395-6880. Many grooms have been choosing vests over the traditional cummerbund as well as euro-ties over bow-ties. The most popular colors for accents are the metallic colors like gold and silver.

Even just a little color can make a bridal gown fabulous. A few bridal designers have created themes for bridal gowns and tuxes for this coming summer and fall season. Check up on the latest styles and more flare to your wedding day.

Keep the party festive with helpful stain-removal tips

Wherever there is a celebration, there is an array of stains just waiting to happen. From a glass of wine knocked over onto the table linen to a food stain on a necktie to a smudge of flower pollen picked up on a dress, a stain can happen at any time. And, unless you know how to treat it, a stain can leave a permanent mark.

Wedding celebrations are a common place for stains to occur. Following are some helpful stain-removal tips, courtesy of "101 Essential Tips: Removing Stains" (DK), by Cassandra Kent, to help keep the party "bright."

• Dark-colored fruit stains — Try to treat a fruit stain while it is fresh. Remove the item of clothing or table linen and dilute the stain by rinsing it in the sink under running cold water until most of the stain has lifted. Treat any color residue by dabbing the area using a soft white cloth dipped in denatured alcohol or a commercial stain remover. If you are outside or simply do not have any denatured alcohol on hand, rub a cut lemon over the stain; in the sun, lemon juice works as a bleaching agent.

• Grease stains on neckties — Neckties particularly are susceptible to grease spots from food, however, sponging off stains often leaves behind a mark. Before putting on a tie, apply a fabric-protection spray. This spray will resist the absorption of grease into the fibers so that there is time to wipe away spills.

• Red wine on fabric — The fibers in most fabrics quickly absorb red wine, so try to mop up the spill with a white paper towel or paper napkin before it has time to seep in. Never use colored napkins because they can transfer dye to the stain. Instead, sprinkle the area with salt. Salt rapidly absorbs the wine and limits damage to a small area.

• Lipstick stains — Successfully treat stubborn lipstick marks on clothes, table linen and bathroom towels by first sponging the affected area using denatured alcohol on a white cloth. Follow this treatment by applying a little undiluted dishwashing liquid onto the stain. Rub it into the fabric with a clean finger, then wash the item according to the care label.

• Marble on suede — Greasy substances spilled on suede can leave a permanent stain. Blot the grease with a kitchen towel, then rub the area with a block suede cleaner, kept handy. For persistent stains, wrap a cotton pad in a clean cloth, apply a little cigarette-lighter fluid to it and dab the stain, being careful to test a hidden part first.

• Pollen — Normal washing removes light stain on fabrics. If not, dab lightly with denatured alcohol, then gently sponge off with clean warm water.

• Watermarks — A drop or dab of water on a delicate fabric like silk may leave behind a ring mark when the fabric dries. To remove a watermark, simply bring a kettle of water to a boil; hold the marked area of the item in the steam until the ring disappears. (Remember to keep fingers well away from the path of the steam, which can cause a very painful burn.)

County board initiates bill to be signed by governor

As part of its "2001 Legislative Program," a wish list of legislation the Lake County Board is seeking from the State of Illinois, the board desires state aid for school district impacted by military dependents residing on tax exempt federal land. Senate Bill 326 ought to accomplish the board's goal once Governor Ryan signs it into law.

Once signed into law, the bill requires the State Superintendent of Education to pay a tax-equivalent grant to a school district if a United States military installation or base is located in the district. The Lake County Board sought direct sponsorship from the county's state senators and representatives on legislation to supplement the inadequate amount of impact aid to school districts that are responsible for the education of military dependent students residing within their boundaries.

"A number of schools in Lake County are impacted by students residing on tax exempt federal military bases at Great Lakes and Fort Sheridan. We need to be certain that these schools have adequate funding to assure a quality education for all of their students, which is why we're grateful that our state senators and representatives took a leadership role on this issue," Schmidt said.

Lake County Board Chair, Suzi Schmidt received word of the bill's passage via a surprise call on her cell phone from State Representative Susan Garrett, who co-sponsored the bill in the State of Illinois General Assembly. Schmidt was holding a strategic planning session with the rest of the county board and county department heads when the call came.

"I've been working very closely with our leaders in Springfield to assure that legislation such as this bill, that benefits Lake County, will have the support of the state lawmakers, so I was excited to hear the good news from Representative Garrett that the bill passed," added Schmidt.

The bill's other sponsors from Lake County were Senators Terry Link, Adeline Geo-Karis and William Peterson and Representatives Karen May, Andrea Moore and Elizabeth Coulson.

North Shore School District 112 educates an average of 250 military dependent students a year who reside at Fort Sheridan. For the 1999-2000 school year, District 112 received $761 per student in state and federal aid, whereas the actual cost of education was $10,428 per student.

High School District 113 is not eligible to receive federal military aid, which means that local taxpayers almost entirely support the cost of educating military dependent students. The cost of educating the 67 military dependent students currently enrolled exceeds $1 million per year.

North Chicago School District 187 educates an average of 1,752 military dependent students a year who reside at the Great Lakes Naval Center, which is equivalent to 36 percent of the total district student population. The district receives some state and federal aid, but the total cost to local taxpayers for the education of military dependent students exceeds $5.8 million.

CLC approves certificates

The College of Lake County board of trustees has approved the addition of three new short-term career certificates in the computer information systems program, continuing the college's ongoing effort to help students acquire in-demand workplace skills quickly.

The new certificates, which are subject to approval by the Illinois Community College Board, will prepare students for job using C++, JAVA and Visual Basic, three popular programming languages extensively used in business and industry. Credits earned for the certificates also may be applied toward an associate in applied science degree.

In other actions relating to academic programs, the board reduced the number of credit hours required in general education for the associate in applied science degree from 18-15, in keeping with state regulations that allow for offering more technical courses in the degree program.

The board also approved the addition of two short-term career certificates in the college's water-wastewater program, subject to approval by the Illinois Community College Board. The CLC trustees also approved a recommendation not to admit a freshman class in the medical laboratory technology program for the 2001-2002 academic year, a move reflecting declining enrollment in the program.

In other news, architects presented a schematic design for the proposed new technology building on the Grayslake Campus. The estimated $36.4 million building will consist of three stories and a basement, housing several technology programs, including automotive technology and refrigeration and air conditioning. The college received $3.48 million in planning funds approved by the legislature and the governor in the fiscal 2001 budget, and has requested funding to begin construction of the project.

In personnel matters, the board approved a 4 percent increase in base salary for fiscal year 2002 for classified, specialist, administrative and professional staff. In addition, the board approved adjustments in flexible compensation for medical and dental insurance, and other benefits.

The board also approved the appointment of eight full-time faculty members: Kelly Cartwright biology; Sonjay Kumar, computer information systems; Michelle Leonard, electronics; Ann Mazza, physics; Tracy Rasch, human services; Phyllis Soybel, history; Jennifer Staben, English; and Xiaoming Zhai, geology. Additionally, the board passed resolutions honoring retiring staff members Cheryl Strickland, executive secretary in student development, and Chlorine McAllister, evening clerk in the counseling center.

Under grants, the board accepted a $24,800 grant from the Illinois Board of Higher Education to support the college's cooperative work-study program. The work-based learning program offers students the opportunity to earn college credits and gain job experience at area businesses.

Purchasing approvals included acceptance of a bid from McDonough Mechanical Services, Inc. of Waukegan for $176,983, for a gas boiler in the Learning Resource Center, and in cooperation with the North Suburban Higher Education Consortium, accepted a proposal from Tandberg, Inc. of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., for a $120,080 to upgrade the video conferencing system in distance learning classrooms.

In contract matters, the board approved proposals from R.J. Galla company, Inc. of Grayslake for the purchase of a treasurer's bond at an annual premium of $15,563, and property and liability insurance coverage for FY 2002 for $412,624. The board also retained Arthur J. Gallagher and Company as the administrative agent for the college's group life insurance program and UNUM Life Insurance Company as the underwriter for the basic life and accidental death and dismemberment program for fiscal year 2002.

ANSWERS

HOROSCOPE

Aries — March 21/April 20

Don't keep your opinion to yourself when you disagree with a close friend. He or she is open to other viewpoints and will listen to what you have to say. Speak your mind. A loved one needs your help with a family matter. Do what you can for him or her. Gemini plays a key role.

Taurus — April 21/May 21

Don't be stubborn when it comes to a financial decision this week. What you want to do may not be the best thing. Listen to what those close to you have to say; they have some good ideas. Look at all of the pros and cons before making your decision. The person whom you've been seeing has a surprise for you. Enjoy!

Gemini — May 22/June 21

While you enjoy living life in the fast lane, Gemini, that's not the way it's going to be this week. No matter what you do, you can't seem to make any progress. Don't get discouraged. Just keep working diligently. Things will get better by the end of the week. Virgo is involved.

Cancer — June 22/July 22

Keep your feelings to yourself early in the week. Cancer, especially when it comes to a problem at work. Speaking your mind only will make the situation worse. Let the higher-ups handle this matter. That special someone needs your advice about a personal problem. Try to help.

Leo — July 23/August 23

Don't hold a grudge against a loved one who has made a mistake. He or she didn't mean to hurt you. Let him or her explain what happened, and you're sure to understand everything. The person whom you've been seeing wants to intensify the relationship. Say yes — you know that this is what you want.

Virgo — Aug 24/Sept 22

You can't seem to sit still this week, Virgo. Don't let all of this energy go to waste. Put it to good use, both at work and at home. You're sure to get a lot done if you set your mind to it. Those around you will be impressed with your efforts. You meet an interesting person late in the week. Be sure to get to know him or her better.

Libra — Sept 23/Oct 23

You have to make an important decision about your career this week. There's no putting it off. Look at all of the pros and cons, and turn to loved ones for advice. They have your best interest at heart. They will help you make the right choice.

Scorpio — Oct 24/Nov 22

A close friend gets into some trouble and needs your help. While you're hesitant to get involved, do what you can for him or her. Your efforts definitely will be appreciated. A co-worker reveals his or her true feelings for you. Be sure to let this person down gently. You don't want to damage your professional relationship.

Sagittarius — Nov 23/Dec 21

You have a lot to do early in the week; don't get distracted. Stay focused on the tasks at hand, and try to ignore the antics of those around you. You don't have time for that. With hard work, you'll get things done — and you'll have plenty of time to relax during the weekend. Aquarius plays a key role.

Capricorn — Dec 22/Jan 20

Don't be shy when you meet an interesting person this week. Let him or her know how you feel. Your feelings will be reciprocated. A close friend asks for your advice about a personal matter. Be honest — even if what you have to say won't be appreciated.

Aquarius — Jan 21/Feb 18

Be realistic when planning your week. There's so much that you want to get done, but you know that you can't do it all. Prioritize things, and you're sure to make a lot of progress. That special someone needs a shoulder to cry on. Be there for him or her.

Pisces — Feb 19/March 20

Stay alert at work this week, Pisces, because something is going on. Try to find out what it is. Business associates are counting on you to learn the truth. Don't worry — things are not as bad as they seem. Cancer plays a key role on Tuesday.

Wauconda 10-year-old Jr. Bulldog baseball World Series-bound

With its semifinal showing in the Bourbonnais tournament, the Wauconda Jr. Bulldogs 10-year-old received an automatic berth in the State tournament June 28 through July 1, which will also be held in Bourbonnais.

But the team went a step further. It not only made it to the semifinals, it finished runner-up, which also automatically qualified them for the World Series in South Haven, Miss. July 15-22.

But it wasn't easy.

The 10-year-olds got off to a shaky start in the Bourbonnais, falling to Glenview 11-3. Highlights included doubles by Garrett Dorsey and Jake Bray.

The second game of the tournament proved much better as the Bulldogs slipped by Wheaton 5-3. Wauconda received outstanding pitching from Jeff Jackson and Luke Mottashed.

In the third game against Warrenville, the Bulldogs' bats came alive as it cruised to a 12-4 victory. Jeff Jackson went deep with a long home run with runners on first and second. Dalton Cuchna came up next to hit a back-to-back home run. Dorsey went 3-for-3 with a double, Ty Miller 2-for-2 with two doubles and Adam Smith collected two doubles to pace the offense.

With a 2-1 record to this point, the Bulldogs made it to the semifinals where they faced Wells Park. It was a tight game all the way. The Bulldogs waited until the bottom of the sixth inning, where they were training 5-4. With the bases loaded, two outs and a full count, Eric Bierman ripped a shot to right centerfield, scoring two runs for a 6-5 come-from-behind victory. Jackson had two doubles in the game.

Then, in the championship game, the Bulldogs faced Glenview again. Bierman started on the mound, shutting down Glenview 1-2-3. The defense also played outstanding behind him.

But then came the rain, lightning and to top it off, a funnel cloud. After a 1-hour delay the Bulldogs never got back on track. Mottashed paced the offense, belting a 3-run blast.

For the tournament, Jackson faced 21 batters and had 18 strikeouts. Offensively, Garrett Dorsey went 5-for-10, Eric Bierman 4-for-8, Ty Miller 4-for-8, Jackson 4-for-5 and Dalton Cuchna 4-for-8.

Later in the week, Wauconda returned home to play a doubleheader against Gagewood. Drew Hylen and Scott Franzgrote provided solid pitching. At the plate, Dorsey went 4-for-6, Ty Miller 3-for-6, Jake Bray 3-for-4 and Nick Jay 3-for-4 as the two teams split the pair of games.

This first-year team is 3-5 in regular season play and 4-0 in tournament play. They will travel to Omaha, Neb. for the Super Series Tournament in July.

In a hard-fought battle, the Graylake Galaxy 8-19 boys soccer team earned a 1-1 draw with Johnsonburg. The Galaxy defense held firm with C. Makryen and K. Beckford leading the way.

Graylake keeper S. Moritz came off his line several times to stymie the Johnsonburg attack. G. Robinson has the best chance to score for the Galaxy in the first half when he found space inside the 18-yard line. But his pass was tipped and Johnsonburg was able to clear as the first half ended 0-0.

Johnsonburg scored early in the second half but Graylake (1-3-2) tied the game when J. Elledge flicked a header towards the Johnsonburg goal and on an attempted clearance, went into the defender's own net. Morris was stellar in goal in the second half, thwarting several Johnsonburg attempts at breaking the 1-1 tie.

The Warren United 8-10 Minner Blue team played to a 1-1 tie with Glenview. The Minners scored the first goal of the game as Annie Strychalski assisted on a left footed goal by Lucy White. The Titans tied the score in the second half on a penalty kick. The Minners are 9-1-2.

The Lindenhurst 8-9 Predator boys soccer team topped the Naperville Galaxy Cosmos, 5-1. John Andros scored two goals while Nick Selp, Taylor Westra and Robert Nagle added one each. Nathan McMahon assisted one two goals and Shane Hunter and Robert Nagle one each as the Predators improved to 5-1 in the Bronze Division.

Former CHS star Stahoviak named UIC baseball's hitting coach

By ROB BACKUS
Staff Reporter

It's been a long road for former major leaguer Scott Stahoviak, 31, of Mundelein.

The 1988 Carmel graduate was an All-State selection at first base in his senior season under coach Joe Pudlo.

"He (Pudlo) was a big help," said Stahoviak. "He knew quite a bit from his playing days."

Stahoviak also credits his father, Ed, with a lot of his success.

"He's been my coach my whole life," said Stahoviak. "He's had an influence over my whole career."

However, before his senior season Stahoviak was known mainly as a pitcher.

"I liked hitting but I never really got a chance to swing the bat," said Stahoviak. "With his (Pudlo's) help, I developed into a good enough hitter for people to take notice."

Stahoviak hit .484 with eight home runs and 45 RBI, good enough to earn a ride to Omaha, Neb., to play on Creighton University's baseball team.

He was even selected in the 27th round of the Amateur Draft in June, 1988 by the Minnesota Twins but chose to play at the collegiate level.

Stahoviak flourished for the Blue Jays under coach Jim Hendry, now the assistant general manager for the Chicago Cubs.

"He (Hendry) was a tremendous influence and a terrific role model," said Stahoviak.

And Hendry was quick to sing the praises of Stahoviak as well.

"Scott was a tremendous player in college," said Hendry. "He helped get our program at Creighton over the hump. He's a real professional, smart and a hard-nosed player who will bring a lot to the university (UIC)."

In 1991, his final year at Creighton, Stahoviak hit a robust .449 with 13 home runs, 74 RBI and 87 runs scored in helping the Blue Jays earn a spot in the College World Series.

His outstanding collegiate career was enough to get the Twins knocking on his door again.

Minnesota selected him 27th overall, with a supplemental pick in between the first and second rounds in the June 1991 Amateur Draft.

After spending two seasons in the Twins minor league system, Stahoviak earned a call-up in 1993.

Over five seasons from 1993 to 1998, Stahoviak batted .256 over 344 games. His best season was 1996 in which he hit .283 with 13 home runs and 61 RBI over 130 games.

He credits Twins coach Terry Crowley with his success at the major league level.

After his professional career was over, Stahoviak took a job as hitting coach for Carmel High School this past season under coach Chuck Gandolfi.

"He (Stahoviak) brought a dedication and timeless effort to the team," said Gandolfi. "He also brought an extreme knowledge of hitting and presented it in a way kids could understand. He taught the kids the importance of mental ability as well as the need for sound mechanics at the plate."

Despite being back at his old stomping grounds, Stahoviak always wanted to coach at the collegiate level.

He initially contacted UIC as well as several other schools and the Flames showed the most interest.

After the hitting coach job opened up, UIC offered Stahoviak the job and he took it.

"I enjoy baseball at the college level because of its competitiveness and the way it's played at this level," said Stahoviak. "I also like working with kids that age because they listen and they want to learn."

The Flames will get Stahoviak's impressive pedigree his vast overall knowledge of hitting.

"I like to think I bring an overall knowledge of the game," said Stahoviak. "I like to teach players to hit with a purpose, not just power. I want to teach all-around and situational hitting."

 rection of his career. He loved his job but he worked for a company that expected him to move up in the organization or find a job outside of the organization. Although this practice is becoming less prevalent, it raises the question of the match between your career goals and your company's expectations. Let's look at several key areas where there may be a discrepancy.
Career Growth — Many companies have some expectation in this area. There are still some who want employees to advance or move out of the company. But more often they assume that employees who want to move ahead will be the better performers, those who overachieve. While in reality, there may be some people that want to advance who just don't understand the ground rules. Regardless of your career goals, this is a good question for your manager. Ask what he or she expects from you in the area of career growth. If their expectation does not meet your goal try to develop a common ground for a mutual expectation. But be realistic. Analyze the long-term effects of your decision.
Child Care — Although we have made tremendous strides in this area most companies still expect that you need to provide for the care of your children on your own time. Make sure that you understand your company's position on taking time off to be with a sick child, for school visits etc. That understanding could be the key to avoiding a conflict in the future.
Salary and Wages — Understanding the company's policy on wage and salary administration could be the key to understanding many of the other issues. Usually, this policy is designed to assure that all people are fairly compensated. However, some companies evaluate various criteria differently. For example, one company may put a higher value on employees that have been with the company for a longer period of time because they understand the company goals and culture better. Another company may put a higher value on production and choose to compensate those who produce more at a higher rate. Regardless of your company's compensation policy the important issue is that it is consistent with your career goals.
Benefits — This area is closely related to salary and wages.
 However, the benefit plan often includes additional considerations such as the needs of the employee's family members and geographic differences. Some companies believe in providing the best health care possible, including dental care and eye care. Others believe in spending the money on more employee time off.
 Regardless of the company's priorities, they will spend about the same for compensation (salary, wages and benefits) for a given job as the other companies that compete in the same labor market. So the compensation for an accountant with a given skill set will be similar regardless of company. However, one company may have a better salary and another company may have better health care benefits.
 Your skills and experience are valuable to you and to your employer. Understanding the goals of the company that you work for could be an important issue in deciding the direction of your work life.

How To Survive The Job Search
 By Nancy Sakol

Q: I was laid off from my job at (name withheld) last week and when I was released, I was called in to personnel and told that there would be several others behind me being released. I went down to file unemployment that day and heard from them just today. I was told that my unemployment was denied on the basis of insubordination. I just found out today through a co-worker, that no other person was released from the company. Only me. I got mad and called the person in charge of personnel who refused on three attempts to take my call. I remember reading once where you sometimes are able to help people with situations like these. All I want are some answers. I have included the name of the person to reach if at all possible.

Q: Be aware that although the company obviously protested your claim for unemployment compensation, the decision is open for appeal if you choose to. That is your right. Before you proceed, however, you may want to know that the story of your release from this company runs in a very different direction. The story as it has been told is that you were "terminated", not laid off as you suggested. The reason for your termination was due to the variety of documented times that you were spike to regarding your excessive cussing and vulgarity. The final complaints were from co-workers who felt it not necessary that they should have to work in that type of an environment. It was also suggested to me that the company had given you both verbal and written warnings prior to termination and that this was presented to you upon termination. Citing that you "more than likely heard what you wanted to hear" they also stated that at no time was there term "laid-off", even part of the termination, nor the idea that there were "several others" behind you. There is already more than one side to this story and you may choose to appeal the decision, but the facts will prevail and the decision may not change. Rather than sitting around dwelling on this, perhaps you should put your energy into moving on to a new employer. Try your hardest to find a more acceptable vocabulary for the work place. I hope this helps to give you closure. It would be in your best interest to have no other contact with their company as I am told they are considering filing a harassment complaint. Good luck.

How To Survive
The Job
Search
By Nancy Sakol

Q: I was laid off from my job at (name withheld) last week and when I was released, I was called in to personnel and told that there would be several others behind me being released. I went down to file unemployment that day and heard from them just today. I was told that my unemployment was denied on the basis of insubordination. I just found out today through a co-worker, that no other person was released from the company. Only me. I got mad and called the person in charge of personnel who refused on three attempts to take my call. I remember reading once where you sometimes are able to help people with situations like these. All I want are some answers. I have included the name of the person to reach if at all possible.

Q: Be aware that although the company obviously protested your claim for unemployment compensation, the decision is open for appeal if you choose to. That is your right. Before you proceed, however, you may want to know that the story of your release from this company runs in a very different direction. The story as it has been told is that you were "terminated", not laid off as you suggested. The reason for your termination was due to the variety of documented times that you were spike regarding your excessive cussing and vulgarity. The final complaints were from co-workers who felt it not necessary that they should have to work in that type of an environment. It was also suggested to me that the company had given you both verbal and written warnings prior to termination and that this was presented to you upon termination. Citing that you "more than likely heard what you wanted to hear" they also stated that at no time was there term "laid-off", even part of the termination, nor the idea that there were "several others" behind you. There is already more than one side to this story and you may choose to appeal the decision, but the facts will prevail and the decision may not change. Rather than sitting around dwelling on this, perhaps you should put your energy into moving on to a new employer. Try your hardest to find a more acceptable vocabulary for the work place. I hope this helps to give you closure. It would be in your best interest to have no other contact with their company as I am told they are considering filing a harassment complaint. Good luck.

County Fair plans firming up

The pace is quickening on a daily basis for managers and committee members of the Lake County Association working on this year's exposition running July 24-29 at the fairgrounds at Rtes. 45 and 120.

Executive Director David Bonner said time-proven events for fair fans will be on the six-day schedule with some new touches to swell attendance normally in the area 200,000.

A returning crowd favorite will be the three-day truck and tractor pull starting at Friday, July 27 at 7 p.m. Antique tractors, modified 4 x 4 trucks and hot farm class tractors will be featured.

The following day, semi-trucks will be added to the mix.

On the final fair day, Sunday, July 29, there will be 2 wheel drive trucks, two classes of modified mini-rods and 12,000 pounds. pro-stick tractors.

Another crowd favorite is chainsaw artist Jerry Ward who will be appearing daily, according to Bonner. Ward's unique work will be for sale.

Bonner said there will be autograph signing for motorcross pros following practice on Tuesday, July 24 before two-days of racing begins on July 25.

An Open Letter to the Community of District 116

What's Been Happening in Round Lake District #116?

We are sure every member of the communities that make up District 116 are aware that our district is in financial difficulties. We, the members of the Education Association of Round Lake ("EARL") would like to give you our interpretation.

Our district has been on the State Financial watch list for nearly a decade. Last year the Board of Education requested that the State appointed a Financial Oversight Panel to oversee all expenditures. We are sure that this has not turned out the way the board believed it would. Decisions are more difficult and monies promised by the state have been held up in the legislative process.

Last summer the Board and the Union attempted to reach agreement on $2M in budget cuts. Agreement could not be reached and the Board imposed cuts that violated our contract, thus committing several unfair labor practices caused several grievances. Hearings for those will probably by this summer.

This winter the Board and the Union did agree to numerous reductions for next year and those employees affected have been notified.

On April 3, the District attempted to pass a $2.2M referendum to pay for employees' individual health insurance costs. This amount was chosen for two reasons. First, because it allowed the district to capture more funds than a regular education fund referendum because the district is so deep in debt. Secondly, by using this money to pay for insurance it would have freed up $2.2M to pay for other programs and expenses. Much of what is happening is attributed to a state school funding system that relies heavily on property taxes in a District that has very little industry or corporate tax base. Another contributing factor is tax caps. Another factors include a diverse student population that requires expensive programs and according to the chair of the Financial Oversight Panel, "(the) lack of future planning by the District has been a big part of the problem."

The employees of District 116 have been working diligently with the District this year to deal with the problems. In addition, the employees of District 116 have been working without a contract since June 30, 2000. We believe achieving a contract is imperative to the stabilizing the District. We ask that you contact the Board of Education Members of District 116 and tell them you want quality education for your students and a contract for the employees.
